PREFACE

Two points should be noted with regard to the Introduction : in the section devoted to the language of the English translation only words of English and Scandinavian origin are dealt with, and, moreover, space is only given to evidence of dialect; secondly, the list of words at the end is not a complete glossary. Its sole purpose is to explain rare words and those that by their form or spelling would not be readily understood by readers acquainted only with modern English.

The text and the introduction which preceded it were approved as a thesis for the degree of M.A. in the University of London in December, 1914.

I wish to express here my most sincere thanks to the Master and Fellows of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, for their kind permission to transcribe the Manuscript; and to the Librarian, Mr. G. Butler, and the former Librarian, Mr. C. Moule, for the ready assistance which they gave me. I also wish to thank Miss A. C. Paues of Newnham College, and Miss K. S. Block and Miss H. M. R. Murray of the Royal Holloway College, for their warm interest in my work and for much kind criticism and help in the course of it.

INTRODUCTION

SECTION I. The Manuscript.

THE MS. Parker 32 (old numberings T. J. 241, and P. 6) in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, consists of 208 folios of vellum, $13\frac{1}{10}$ inches by $9\frac{4}{5}$ inches. It is written in double columns of 42 to 56 lines. There are two blank folios at the beginning, and six at the end (not included in the numbering). The margins have been cut, as is proved by mutilated drawings, initia letters, and marginal notes. The upper margin is from $\frac{5}{10}$ to $\frac{9}{10}$ of an inch wide; the outside margin from $1\frac{3}{10}$ to 2 inches wide; the lower margin from $1\frac{2}{5}$ inches to 2 inches wide; the space between the columns is usually half an inch. The inside margin is about 1 or $1\frac{1}{5}$ inches wide, but has been taken up in the binding.

The MS. contains :—

- (1) fol. 1, a. A Gloss and Commentary upon St. Mark's Gospel, in English, with the Latin Vulgate text given as well. The plan is to give a passage of the Latin text, then to translate it into English, and lastly to add a Commentary on the passage. It begins with a prologue: “Seynte Marke ewangeliste þe chose of god,” etc.; the text begins: “Inicium ewangeli iesu christi filij dei,” etc.; the translation begins: “þe bigynnyng of þe gospel of iesu crist god son,” etc.; the commentary begins: “Matthew seys þe gospel of þe son of dauid,” etc. At the top is a sketch of a lion in black and red, partly cut off.

- fol.* 8, b. In the left margin is written : beati qui audiunt verbum dei et custodiunt illud," and below " Nicolas Lenakars scripsit," in a hand of the 15th century (Dr. M. James).¹
- fol.* 54, a. At the heading of Chap. XVI there is drawn in the left margin a sketch in black and red of Christ with the banner of the Resurrection stepping out of the tomb; beneath is written in red : "Here is expownyng of þe gospel on Asturday."
- fol.* 56, a. A sketch in red and black of the Ascension, the eleven apostles and the Virgin in the centre; above is written : "Here is þo expownyng of þe gospel of þe Ascenciown of howre lord iesu crist."
- fol.* 56, b. "Here endis þe glose of marke þee ewangelist in Englissche tunge Thankyde be God Amen." Below is a sketch in black and red of Christ enthroned.

Throughout this Commentary on St. Mark are marginal references to Bede, Jerome, and Augustine, names only, underlined in red or surrounded by a red line.

- (2) fol. 57, a. A gloss and commentary upon St. Luke's Gospel, similar to that upon St. Mark.

The Prologue begins : "þof it be wryten þat dyuers has wryten þo gospelys," etc. The text begins : "Fuit in diebus herodis regis," etc., and the translation begins : þer was in þo dayes of herode kynge," etc.

The initial þ- in red, gold, and black, extends down the left margin the whole length of the page. Below is a sketch in black and red of a winged ox, with the inscription : "Here is þo bigynnyng of Seynt Lucus Gospelus expownyng."

- fol.* 59, a. Sketch in the lower margin in red, black, and gold, of the Annunciation, with the rubric : "Here is þe expownyng of þe gospel of þe Anunciaciown of howre laydi."

- fol.* 60, b. Sketch in the left margin in black and red of the Visitation, partly cut away, with the rubric, “[Her] is þe metyng [of M]ari and of Elisa[beth].”
- fol.* 63, b. Sketch of an angel in the lower margin, showing upper part of body only, with the inscription: “Gloria in excelsis.” Beside it is a sketch in red and black of “Twey scheperdus” and two sheep, with the inscription: “Here is þe expownyng of þe gospel of howre laydi on Mydwynntur day.”
- fol.* 64. a. Sketch in red and black of the Nativity, in the lower margin.
- fol.* 64, b. Sketch of the Presentation, in lower margin, red and black. The names “Jesus” and “Symeon” are given, and there is a rubric: “Here is þe expownyng of þe gospel on kondulmas day.”
- fol.* 78, b. Bust of Christ in black and red in the left margin.
- fol.* 85, b. Sketch in the lower margin in black and red of Mary Magdalene holding a casket, with the inscription: “Here is þo expownyng of þe gospel of Mari Mawdelene.” Partly cut away.
- fol.* 102, b. In the left margin in black and red, a sketch of the Assumption, the Virgin in a vesica carried by four angels, with the inscription: “Here is þo expownyng of þe gospel of þo asumpcioun of howre laydi.”
- fol.* 104, b. On the upper margin, in red: “Fro men be þo power of þe fend and not of god.”
- fol.* 106, a. In the left margin sketch of the Virgin and Child with the rubric: “Here is þo expownyng of howre laydi gospel red eche day of hyr.”
- fol.* 107, b. In lower margin in black: “and neuerþeles þey dwelle in contynuaunce of þeyre synns.”
- fol.* 154, b. The end of the Commentary upon St. Luke.

At the end of the text is written in red: “Amen god be worshipped and for þo luf of god pray for þoo drawer and alssso for þo wryter.” The rest of the page is left blank.

These Commentaries upon the Gospels of St. Mark and St. Luke, together with another upon the Gospel of St. Matthew, form a group mentioned by Forshall and Madden in their preface.¹ The Commentary upon St. Matthew is found in two MSS., Univ. Lib. Camb. Ii. 2. 12, and Brit. Mus. Egerton 842, that upon St. Mark and St. Luke in MS. Parker 32, CCCC.² According to Forshall and Madden, these Commentaries are written in the Northern Dialect of the middle of the fourteenth century by an unknown author, not Wyclif. They are different in character from the translation of the Pauline Epistles which follows in MS. Parker 32, having prologues and a Commentary compiled chiefly from the writings of Origen, Augustine, Jerome, Hilary, Ambrose, Isidore, Gregory, Maximus, Rufus, Leo, and Bede.³ As in MS. Parker 32, the handwriting changes at the beginning of the translation of the Pauline Epistles,⁴ it would seem probable that the two parts of the MS. had originally no connection, and were merely bound together at a comparatively late date. The occurrence of the name Nicolas Lenakars in both parts of the MS., once on fol. 8, b,⁵ and once on fol. 166, b,⁶ does not disprove this. The name was probably copied on fol. 166, b, from fol. 8, b, and all that can be assumed from it is that the two parts of the MS. were bound in one cover some time before the late fifteenth or early sixteenth century when the scribble on fol. 166, b, was made.

Against the theory that the two parts of the MS. were originally separate it must be mentioned that the character of the illuminations remains the same throughout until fol. 203, a,⁷ that the quality of the vellum, and the arrangement and size of the columns, are unchanged. The question therefore cannot be definitely decided.

varies considerably, from part of a verse to a whole chapter, the passages becoming gradually longer towards the end of the work.¹ The Latin Epistle to the Laodiceans is included but not translated.²

- fol.* 155, a. The Epistle to the Romans, beginning :—“ Paulus seruus iesu christi,” etc., and the translation beginning : “ Poule seruaunt of iesu crist,” etc. In the upper margin has been some decoration, which has been almost entirely cut away.
- fol.* 165, b. The First Epistle to the Corinthians.
- fol.* 166, b. In the left margin is scribbled : “ Nicolas Lenakars ” and six other illegible words, in a later and much smaller hand than that on fol. 8, b.

The handwriting throughout is of the fifteenth century¹; according to Dr. Montague James the Commentaries on St. Mark and St. Luke are in one or two hands, and the Pauline Epistles in another hand.

In a few places the scribe has written the name Ambrose, and once the name Augustine, in the margin opposite a gloss, as though to indicate the source of the gloss, or to suggest another explanation of a difficult passage.²

Throughout the MS. another and later hand has scribbled the letter a frequently, and the letter c occasionally, in the margins; these letters probably mark off the beginning and end of the lessons read in Church.

The initial letters are roughly drawn in red and black; occasionally some gold is used, and the last nine initials in the Epistle to the Hebrews are in red and purple.

Paragraph marks in red are placed between the Latin and English sections, except at the beginning of chapters in the Latin text; they are also placed at the beginning of many sentences. Capital letters in the text, other than at the beginning of a chapter in Latin, are often in red and black.

Throughout the Commentary on St. Mark, the name Mark is usually written in red at the top of each page, but in the Commentary on St. Luke the name Luke is only very rarely written, in small black letters. Throughout the Pauline Epistles the Latin title of the Epistle is usually written in the upper margin, the syllables being made to extend right across the two pages when the MS. is open. The letters are in black and red, and each syllable is surrounded by a red line. Towards the end, however, it is more usual for the whole name to be written on each page in red and black, often surrounded by a red line.

In the Pauline Epistles the first and last line, or the first two and the last two lines, of the Latin passages are underlined in red, the intermediate lines being underlined in black. This system is abandoned after the end of fol. 178, b (2 Cor. vi. 4), and thenceforward the Latin text is not underlined in the MS.¹

In the English text only alternative readings, explanatory glosses, and words inserted for the sake of lucidity, are underlined, in black.

In the two Commentaries, only the English translation of the Gospel text is underlined, in black.

In the Pauline Epistles the numbering of the chapters is given in the margin, the numbers generally being written once in red and once in black and both surrounded by a line. On and after fol. 203, a, however, the numbering is merely written once, in black with a red line drawn through, and no surrounding line.

As changes in the numbering of chapters, the colour of the initials, and the method of underlining all coincide at the beginning of fol. 203, a, it would seem probable that a new illuminator finished off the MS.; the handwriting and the character of the translation remain the same.

In this edition the Latin passages and the glosses to the English version which are underlined in the MS. are printed in italics, with the expanded contractions in Roman type; the English text is printed in Roman type with the contractions in italics. The numbering of chapters and verses is that of the Vulgate, but occasionally the order of words in the English version prevents exact correspondence. The numbering of chapters in the MS. is not always quite in agreement with the Vulgate. All variations from the MS. are recorded in the footnotes, except that the frequent miswriting of p for y, and y for p, is corrected without comment. In the MS. two marks of punctuation are used, viz. the full stop and the inverted semi-colon; these are reproduced exactly in this edition, except that the usual semi-colon is used instead of the latter.

SECTION II. The Provenance of the MS.

MS. Parker 32 forms part of the great Collection of MSS. bequeathed to Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, by Archbishop Parker in the sixteenth century. The most interesting piece of evidence as to its history before it came into Parker's possession is afforded by a letter preserved in the same collection, and numbered 302 (p. 831) in MS. 114, B. The letter runs :—

My moste humble dutie consydered towarde youre Grace : it maye please youre Honoure to vnderstande, that as it greatly delyghted me to heare of youre Graces prosperous returne into thys contrye, whyche (I doubt not) shalle be greatly bothe vnto the glorye of god and vnto the profytt of his people, so lykwyse it not a lytle greued me, that hytherto thorowe certeyne infirmities and diseases, wherwythe I haue bene troubled more than thys halfe yeare at certeyne tymes, vnto the greate loss of my tyme and hyndrauns of my studies, I coulde not attende vpon youre Grace accordyng to my dutie. But to declare in the mean season my seruiseable and faythefulle hearte towarde yourre Honoure, I send vnto youre Grace an olde monument worthy to be preserved and embrased for the antiquities sake, namely an exposition vpon the Gospelles of S. Marcke, and of S. Luke, wythe alle the Epistles of S. Paule bothe in Latin and Englyshe : wher- vnto my wyffe youre Graces daly Oratrix hathe added hyr poore present, that is a couple of fatte capons, and syx chykyns, bothe of vs moste entierly wyshyng from God vnto yowre Grace, continualle healthe and prosperous felicitee, wythe dayly encrease of honowre. From yowre Graces Metropoliticalle churche at Cantorburye this present Wednysdaye.

Yowre Graces moste humble

Tho. Becon.

This letter can scarcely refer to any other MS. than Parker 32, which corresponds exactly to this description. The letter is not included in the volume of Parker's Correspondence published by the Parker Society,¹ but it is printed, with modernised spelling, in the biographical notice of Becon by John Ayre prefixed to the Parker Society's edition of Becon's Early Works,² apparently to show the friendly relations subsisting between Becon and the Archbishop.

The letter is undated, except for "this present Wednysdaye," but its date can be limited to within a few years.

As Parker is addressed in it as youre Grace it must have been written during his archiepiscopate, i.e. between 1559, when he was consecrated, and 1575, when he died. But the date can be limited more closely than this, for the letter is dated from Canterbury by Thomas Becon. This Thomas Becon was a well-known divine, preacher, and author, at that time. He was born in 1511/12 in East Anglia, and educated at Cambridge, where he probably imbibed the strong opinions in favour of the Reformation which caused his later career to be full of vicissitudes. In 1542/3 he was made to recant his doctrine, and burn his books at Paul's Cross, but at the accession of Edward VI he was made rector of St. Stephen's, Walbrook, chaplain to Archbishop Cranmer and to the Protector Somerset, and one of the Six Preachers of Canterbury Cathedral. During Mary's reign he was imprisoned for a while in the Tower, and then spent some years in exile, but on Elizabeth's accession he returned to England, was reinstated in his former offices, and presented with some new benefices. From the year 1564 onwards his works are dated from Canterbury, where he chiefly lived during the last years of his life, until his death in 1567.¹ He was the author of a number of religious works,² the best known of which was A new Postil, conteinyng most godly and learned sermons vpon all the Sonday Gospelles (London 1567).

Thus the date of the letter to Parker may be limited to the period 1559–1567. Moreover, the letter refers to Parker's "prosperous returne into thys contrye." As it does not appear from the accounts of Parker's life³ that he was ever out of England between 1559 and 1567, "thys contrye" must mean the county of Kent or the neighbourhood of Canterbury. Between his consecration at Lambeth in 1559 and Becon's death in 1567, Parker made several visits to Canterbury and to his diocese. His first metropolitical visitation took place in September, 1560, according to his biographer, John Strype,⁴ but this can scarcely have been the occasion, since Becon speaks of Parker's "returne." Other visits mentioned by Strype took place at Midsummer, 1563,⁵ and in May 1565.⁶ During the latter visitation the Archbishop gave three great feasts: one, at Whitsuntide, lasted for three days, Whitsunday, Monday, and Tuesday; the second was on Trinity Sunday, and the third on July 23, "in assize time." The gift of capons and chickens may possibly be connected with these feasts, and in any case one of these two visits was probably the occasion of Becon's letter and manuscript gift.

The next step would be to trace the manner in which the MS. came into Becon's possession, but there is no evidence on this matter. Parker was well known to be a collector of MSS., and in letters he requests his bishops and clergy to send him MSS. which they may find in Cathedral or Parochial Libraries. For instance, when the Bishop of Salisbury was in London, in 1568, Parker "took that opportunity to pray him to search narrowly the library of his Cathedral . . . and as he went his visitation . . . to make diligent inquiry for such ancient books"; accordingly the Bishop sent "one book written in the Saxon tongue . . . of a reasonable bigness."¹

There is no evidence that Becon obtained MS. Parker 32 from the Cathedral Library at Canterbury; on the contrary it seems to have been, at any rate for part of its existence, in private hands. One of these owners was named Henry Walker, for he has scribbled his name in a blank space on fol. 193, a, and the phrase: "Henry Walker owyth thys book."² The handwriting is a late one of the fifteenth century.

Another owner was probably the Nicolas Lenakars who wrote his name in a large clear hand of the fifteenth century on fol. 8, b.² An attempt has been made to trace this Nicholas Lenakars, but though the name Lenakers, Lynacur, or Lynacre, is fairly common in Derbyshire, Staffordshire, and Kent in the fourteenth, fifteenth, and sixteenth centuries, no Nicholas of the name has been found before the latter part of the sixteenth century.

The following five occurrences of the name have been noted:—

(i) Nicholas Lynacers was Vicar of Chebsey in Staffordshire in the sixteenth century, and died before July 25, 1571, when letters of Administration were granted to William Mosse and John Mote for use of Alice, John, and Thomas Lynacers, fil. min.³ No papers relating to this are extant. The Parish

³ Lichfield Registry, Chebsey, fol. 145.

Registers of Chebsey before the year 1712 are lost, so that no further information from that quarter is obtainable.

It is impossible that this should be the man whose name is written in the MS., because of the early date of the handwriting.

(ii) There was a well-defined family of Lynacur, of Brampton and Linacre in Derbyshire; the conjectural pedigree of this family is given by Yeatman¹ from Hugo de Linacre, who died before 1223, to James, who married Agnes Bagshaw at the end of the sixteenth century; but the name Nicholas does not occur in it. The pedigree of the same family is also given, with variations in Jowitt's Reliquary, IX. 29, in Vincent's Derbyshire Pedigrees, and in Harl. Soc. XXXIX. p. 837. The last continues the pedigree for four generations more, from a brother of the James Linacre of Linacre mentioned above. The family appears to have become extinct in the seventeenth century.

(iii) The will of Thomas Lynacre, Doctor of Physic, was proved in 1525,² but it does not give the names of any of his ancestors, only of his brothers and sisters, and none of the former was named Nicholas.

(iv) There is a family of Linacre of Chorley, Staffordshire, whose pedigree during part of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries is given in Harl. Soc. LXIII. p. 157, and Will. Salt Soc. V, p. 203. This family was certainly connected with the Linacres of Linacre, for this note occurs in MS. Harl. 1439³ :—

“This Thomas Linacre of Chorley, in the county of Staff., was descended from Linacre of Linacre in Derbshire as appeareth by divers evidences and wrightings shewed unto me Ri. St. George, Norroy Kinge of Armes, at Litchfield, in my visitation of Staffordshire, a° 1614.”

Nicholas Lynacers, Vicar of Chebsey in the same county, may also have been a connection of the Linacres of Chorley.

(v) Lastly, in the Chamberlain's Accounts of the City of ³ Quoted in Will. Salt Soc., V. p. 203, note.

Canterbury¹ there are entries of Freemen of the same name, notably of Robert Lyneaker, yeoman, who married Joan, daughter of John Fowle, in 1549.

Since the English Version of the epistles contained in the MS. Parker 32 is certainly of Northern origin, judging from the forms of the language,² and since it was in the possession of Thomas Becon in Kent in the sixteenth century, it was thought possible that the migration of this translation from the North Midlands to Canterbury might have been explained by some connection with the Lynacre family. But there is no evidence to connect the Lynacres of Derbyshire and Staffordshire with those of Kent, or with Thomas Lynacre the Doctor of Physic, who possessed lands in Kent; nor has the identity of the Nicholas Lenakars who wrote his name in the MS. been discovered. Becon was in Derbyshire soon after his recantation in 1542/3, and from there he went to Staffordshire, where he remained for more than a year.³ It may have been at this time that he obtained the MS. from a representative of one of the Lynacre families (i), (ii), or (iv) mentioned above.

SECTION III. Knowledge of the Manuscript.

Knowledge of the existence of the early English translation of parts of the New Testament contained in MS. Parker 32 seems first to be found among historians of the English Bible in the first half of the eighteenth century. In 1731 the New Testament translated by John Wyclif was edited by John Lewis, with an introductory account of the several early English translations of the Bible. This Introduction was afterwards republished as a separate work⁴ in 1739 and 1818, and in all three there is the same mention of the MS. Parker 32.

In the course of his account,¹ Lewis remarks :—

“ In the MS. Library of Bennet College [i. e. Corpus Christi College] in Cambridge is a gloss (P. VI.) in the English spoken after the Conquest, on the following Books of the New Testament, viz. the Gospels of St. Mark and St. Luke, and the Epistles to the Romans, Corinthians, Galatians, Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians, Thessalonians, Timothy, Titus, Philemon, and Hebrews, among which is inserted, betwixt the Epistles to the Colossians and Thessalonians, the Apocryphal Epistle to the Laodiceans. Of this translation I hope it will not be reckoned impertinent to subjoin the following specimen sent me by Dr. Waterland :—

“ Mark i. 7. And He prechyde sayande, a stalworther thane I schal come eftar me, of whom I am not worthi downfallande, or knelande, to louse the thwonge of his Chawcers.

“ Mark vi. 22. When the Doghtyr of that Herodias was in comyn and had tombylde and pleside to Herowde, and also to the sittande at mete, the kynge says to the wenche.

“ Mark xii. 1. A man made a vynere, and he made aboute a hegge, and grofe a lake and byggede a tower.

“ Mark xii. 38. Besē ware of the scrybes whylke will go in stolis and be haylsede in the market and for to sit in synagogis in the fyrste chayers.

“ Luke ii. 7. And layde hym in a cratche : for to hym was no place in the dyversory.

“ As for the Gloss or Comment that accompanies this version, it is very like that of Hampole’s on the Psalter. In it are no Reflections on the Friars and Popish Prelates, as is usual in Dr. Wiclit’s writings, only the gloss is much more in the allegorical mystical way than in the literal one. These translations seem to have been made some time before the flourishing of the famous Dr. Wiclit. . . . They seem not to have been published, but made only for the translator’s own use.”

Lewis, who apparently never saw the MS. himself, does not perceive that it contains two different works,² namely (1) the Gospels of St. Mark and St. Luke in Latin, with translation and commentary, and (2) the Pauline Epistles with translation and no commentary, the alternative renderings and occasional explanations not being worthy of that name. It is true that there are no reflections in either part on “ the Friars and Popish Prelates,” but the remark that “ the gloss . . . is very like Hampole’s on the Psalter ” is only applicable to that on the two gospels ; this may be said to resemble Hampole’s in that it is not original, being founded on the writings of the Fathers as Hampole's is on Peter Lombard's commentary for the most part,¹ and that its plan is to give first the Latin text, then the English translation, and lastly the Commentary. The Pauline Epistles and their translation differ from Hampole's work in containing no commentary, and in admitting alternative readings and a few explanations into the text. The opinion that the gloss is more allegorical and mystical than literal applies to the commentary on the two Gospels, not to the few explanations and additions to be found in the text of the Pauline Epistles.

Lewis' information was supplied to him by his friend Dr. Waterland, Master of Magdalene College, Cambridge, who had seen the MS. and transcribed from it the specimens printed by Lewis. Waterland says in a letter to Lewis, dated July 13, 1729² :—

“ I just dipped into one [Testament] at Bene't, or part of one, (P. VI.), which is quite another version, and older than any I had before seen. Upon a transient view, I judge of the age only by the participles running in -ande instead of -ing . . . which is a mark of age above anything I have yet seen of Wickliff's, and goes up a century, perhaps higher, or half a century at least.

Obviously Dr. Waterland was misled as to the age of the version by the apparent archaism of this North-Midland inflexional ending.

In another letter³ Dr. Waterland gives the more detailed description of the MS. that Lewis reproduced in his book. The idea that “ this gloss is very like that of Hampole's upon the Psalms ” was originally Waterland's, who wrote :—

“ The text is first produced in Latin, a paragraph or more at a time, then follows the same in English, and after that a short comment. And the comment is much more in the allegorical mystical way, than in the literal.”

He also gives the versions of the Magnificat contained in Benne't, P. VI. and in the end of Hampole's Psalter, in order that Lewis may perceive the similarity in language and translation. Besides the opinions reproduced by Lewis, Dr. Waterland states :—

“The language, I conceive, is older than Wickliffe's time, and comes nearer to Hampole's. I judge the version and comment (or gloss) to be of 1340 or 1350.”

Lewis' notice of the MS. and its contents caused it to be mentioned by a few historians of the English Bible before the appearance of the present standard edition of the Wycliffite Bible.¹

In 1810 Baber, in his Historical Account of the Saxon and English Versions of the Scriptures previous to the opening of the Fifteenth Century,² refers to Lewis' mention of the MS. Baber had not seen the MS. himself, he does not give its number, like Lewis he confuses Commentary and Translation, and he gives a very inaccurate description of its contents. He says :—

“We have parts of the Gospels of St. Mark and St. Luke, and of the Epistles to the Romans, Corinthians, etc. These translations are for the most part accompanied with a comment.”

He then repeats the specimen verses given by Lewis, but differs from him slightly in thinking that the translators of such works made them, not for their own use, but for that of their respective congregations.

Baber was followed by Bagster³ in 1841, who again refers to Lewis, and gives the same extracts from the MS. He adds :—

“From the existence of a gloss comprehending so very large a portion of the New Testament, I think it probable that the whole of this division of the Scriptures was about that period thus rendered into English; this MS. may in fact be a portion of such a work."

He gives no proof in support of this view. He combines the opinions of Lewis and Baber as to the motive for the translation; he says:—

"This work was probably executed for private edification rather than for public circulation, by some priest seeking (as Mr. Baber conjectures) to instruct those over whom he is set."

He quotes Lewis' remark that the Comment resembles Hampole's, but does not consider that it is the actual work of Hampole:—

"I know of no data upon which to ascribe this work to Hampole, except that which may be supposed to be deduced from similarity of style, and this is very far from a sure criterion."

The mention of the existence of MS. Parker 32 and its contents, in the Preface to Forshall and Madden's edition of the Wycliffite Bible,¹ has led to some rather more scholarly notices of it since the year 1850. There it is recognised that the Gospel Commentaries which form the first part of the MS. are part of a work different from the bi-lingual version of the Pauline Epistles. The commentaries are said² to be by an unknown author, not Wyclif, who wrote in "the northern dialect in the middle of the fourteenth century." The other MSS. in which they are preserved are mentioned.³ The version of the Pauline Epistles is correctly described, and in a note the English version of Rom. i. 1-10 is given. It is assigned to the latter half of the fourteenth century, so the editors evidently thought it slightly later than the Gospel Commentaries.

The next account of the MS., however, given by Dr. Stoughton in his book, Our English Bible,⁴ in 1878, makes no advance.

² Ib., § 18, pp. ix.-x.

³ Ib., p. x. note h.

He writes :—

“ It is described in the [Nasmith] catalogue as written in the fifteenth century, but Lewis thought it belonged to an earlier period. Influenced by him, I once thought so too, and that after a personal inspection of the MS.; but now I am inclined to regard it as of later date. It has been remarked that the Comments contain no reflections on the Friars, a circumstance which contributed to raise a suspicion that the Comments were written before Wycliffe's time; but I think it is more probable that this work belongs to the fifteenth century, and represents a version used by a circle distinct from that of Wycliffe and his followers. Lewis remarks, the work ‘seems not to have been published, but made only for the translator's own use’—a supposition which, if correct, would strengthen my inference.”

In a note he adds :—

“ Forshall and Madden refer to the MS. . . . as containing St. Matthew. This is a mistake; the MS. seems to present a version different from the one which they describe.”

This is a very unsatisfactory account, and contains more than one unsupported assertion. For instance, Dr. Stoughton gives no reason for his change of opinion about the MSS., and it is evident that he makes no distinction between the date of the MS. itself and that of the work contained in it.

Again, he brings no evidence in support of his view that the translation belongs to the fifteenth century, and was intended for a non-Wycliffite circle. Although the complete Wycliffite versions were well known and widely read, it is, of course, conceivable that “a circle distinct from that of Wycliffe and his followers” in the fifteenth century would prefer not to use a Wycliffite translation of the Bible, and would therefore produce one of its own. But more evidence than the mere possibility of the existence of such non-Wycliffite versions in the fifteenth century is required, and an examination of the MS. shows that Dr. Stoughton's theory as to the date and purpose of the translation is not only unsupported but untenable.

In the first place the language in which this translation is written is clearly that of the latter part of the fourteenth and not that of the fifteenth century.¹

Secondly, the opinion that the version was intended for use by a “circle” of readers is not borne out by the nature of the translation.¹

Thirdly, the theory presupposes a definitely anti-Wycliffite bias in the translation, which might be expected to have left traces in the work, especially in the glosses and comments; but none are discernible.²

Lastly, the fact that there is only one extant copy of this translation goes against rather than in favour of this theory, though Dr. Stoughton thinks that his inference that the work was intended to be used by a circle is strengthened by Lewis' opinion that it was meant for the translator's own use. This appears illogical, but he seems to be contrasting this single copy, used by the translator himself among a small circle, with the many MSS. of the Wycliffite versions, made by several collaborators, and used by a very large number of readers all over the country.

Further, Dr. Stoughton's account is unsatisfactory because he has misunderstood Forshall and Madden's description of the MS., which is perfectly correct as far as it goes. The two distinct works contained in the MS.³—the commentaries on St. Mark and St. Luke, and the translation of the Pauline Epistles—are mentioned in two different paragraphs, it is true, but there is no mistake, and it is clearly stated that the Commentary on St. Matthew, which is associated with the other two Gospel Commentaries in some MSS.,⁴ is not contained in MS. Parker 32.

Since 1878 several historians of the Bible in English have mentioned the existence of the versions contained in MS. Parker 32, without contributing anything to our knowledge of these early renderings, although they usually express a sense of their importance. Thus Mombert⁵: “The work itself is the most important in the field of English Translation down to that period ”; and Moulton¹: “ Interesting and valuable monuments of learning and private zeal.” Others who mention this translation of the Pauline Epistles are Edgar² and Lechler³; the latter follows the preface of the Forshall and Madden edition of the Wycliffite Bible; he sees in the fact “ that the full Latin text always stands first . . . a clear proof that the work could not have been prepared for the people, but rather for the less educated class of priests.”

Finally, pre-Wycliffite translations of the Bible have been investigated by Miss A. C. Paues, who mentions in passing that contained in the Parker MS. 32 in her *Fourteenth Century English Biblical Version*⁴ (Introd. pp. xxvii. and xxviii. edn. of 1904). Miss Paues classes it with other Northern versions of parts of the New Testament⁵ that were all probably made before the earlier Wycliffite version, and considers that it was of orthodox origin.

SECTION IV. The Latin Text.

The Latin text of the Vulgate contained in MS. Parker 32 is a fairly correct one, and is evidently based on a text of that English type which was reproduced extensively in English MSS. of the thirteenth century, but comparatively rarely in the fourteenth century. It has not been possible to find a MS. giving an exactly similar text. Throughout, the Latin words are spelt in the usual mediæval fashion; these spellings are of course retained in the text, and it has not been thought necessary to note them as text-variations. For the sake of comparison readings are given in some chapters chosen as specimens from the MS., showing how it varies from the *Codex Amiatinus*⁶

In ten chapters chosen at random from the MS., its Latin text is seen to differ from both the Codex Amiatinus and the MS. Reg. I. B. XII. eighty-two times; it is in agreement with the Codex Amiatinus and different from the MS. Reg. I. B. XII. forty-three times, and follows the MS. Reg. I. B. XII. against the Codex Amiatinus fifty-seven times. It is difficult, therefore, to place it in closer relationship with either of these two rather than the other, and it would appear to represent a later English type of text that in process of recopying had received numerous minor alterations. It is noticeable that the variants are seldom of any great moment, but consist for the most part of inversions of the order of words, omissions of words, changes in the tenses of verbs and the cases of nouns, and in the way of naming Christ.

There are a few more important divergences; in the specimen chapters given above there are three examples of these.

In Rom. i. 30 not only is the word detractabiles found as against the detractores of the other two versions, but the words sibi placentes are added to the text.

Again, in Col. ii. 4 the MS. reads sublimitate with W as against suptilitate in A, which involves a change of meaning as well as a change of word.

Again, in Rom. iv. 18 the words et sicut arena que est in litore maris are added to the text, and are not found in this place in the other Vulgate versions; they have probably been adopted from Gen. xxii. 17, where MS. Reg. I. B. XII. reads: multipli-cabo semen tuum sicut stellas celi et uelud arena que est in litore maris, or from Heb. xi. 12, where the MS. itself reads: tamquam sidera celi in multitudinem et sicut arena que est ad oram maris innumerabilis.

These divergences are of a more serious character than the rest, and might provide clues to the original of this type of Vulgate text, but it has not been found possible to trace them.

The Epistle to the Laodiceans.

The spurious nature of the Epistle to the Laodiceans was recognised by Wyclif and by the author of the Later Wycliffite version, who omitted it from their translations. However, translations of it are found in ten of the later MSS. of the Later version,¹ together with a preface, which contains the following explanatory sentence :—

“ But this pistil is not in comyn Latyn bookis, and therfor it was but late translated into Englisch tungē.”²

This statement is not falsified by our MS., although it probably referred only to the two Wycliffite versions; for curiously enough, as has been noticed (Section I.), the Latin text of the Epistle is given, but the blank space left for the translation was never filled up, probably for the same reasons that led to its omission from the Earlier Wycliffite version and from some MSS. of the Later version.

It is remarkable that the Latin text of the Epistle to the Laodiceans contained in our MS. is not identical with that from which either of the translations printed by Forshall and Madden³ was made, nor is it identical with the Latin text printed by Fabricius in Codicis Apocryphi Novi Testamenti, tom. ii., Hamburg, 1703 (quoted as Fab. in footnotes to the text), with which the MS. text has been collated. This becomes evident from the following table.

In the text the verse-numbering of Fabricius is followed; two other printed Latin texts have been collated, and their variants recorded in the footnotes, viz. Stephanus Prætorius : Epistola ad Laodicesenses latine et germanice edita, Hamburg, 1595 (quoted as Steph. Praet. in the footnotes), and Reineccius polyglot text (Leipzig, 1747), reprinted by K. W. Stein, in his Kommentar zu dem Evangelium des Lucas, nebst einem Anhange über den Brief an die Laodiceer, Halle, 1830 (quoted in the footnotes as R. S.). This text agrees with that of Fabricius, when not otherwise mentioned.

The great divergence of the MS. from these texts might provide a clue to the origin of all the Vulgate text contained in it, but it has not been found possible to identify it.

SECTION V. The English Text.

The merits of the English translation contained in this MS. are not very high; the author was evidently a man of great perseverance but not much ability, for his rendering is laborious and on the whole accurate, but very rough and pedestrian. He had no sense of style, of what he calls the “curyosite and fayrhed of woordys” (I. Cor. i. 17), and was unable to rid his English of the influence of the Latin original, for it abounds with Latin constructions and the order of words is frequently entirely foreign to English usage.¹ He takes but little trouble to avoid repetition of a word or phrase, and is apt to render a Latin word invariably by the same English expression, whatever the context. Thus he almost always renders euangelium by ewangelye, not by gospel, iustus by riȝtwis, and gentes by þe folc, not by gentiles; for gloria he has two translations, ioye and glorye. The rendering of Latin conjunctions was a recognised difficulty among translators, who are characterised by their different solutions of it. Thus the reviser of the Wycliffite Versions recommends that autem and vero be rendered by forsythe, but, or and, and enim by forsythe, cause thus, or forwhi.² The translators of the E.B.V. use other equivalents³; in the Catholic Epistles of MS. Douce. 250, soplly and forsope are used almost exclusively for autem and enim, while in the Prologue and the other Epistles in MS. Selwyn Coll. 108, L.1., which are by another hand, many other renderings are used, but never those. In the present text, the translator's lack of variety is particularly wearisome in his use of conjunctions; forsope is found corresponding to no less than four Latin words, viz.—

(1) autem, e. g. in I. Cor. iv. 10, etc. also, but rarely, perfore, e. g. I. Cor. v. 11, for, e. g. Eph. v. 13, and but, e. g. Eph. iv. 28. (2) enim, e. g. in Eph. v. 6, etc. also frequently for, e. g. I. Cor. iv. 20, more rarely perfore, e. g. I. Cor. iv. 9 and forwhy, e. g. Heb. ii. 10. (3) vtique, e. g. in I. Cor. v. 10, etc. (4) uero, e. g. in Eph. iv. 11.

perfore is used by him even more extensively, and corresponds to at least eight Latin words, viz.—

(1) autem, e. g. in I. Cor. v. 11, etc. as above. (2) enim, e. g. in I. Cor. iv. 9, etc. as above. (3) ideo, e. g. in I. Cor. iv. 17, etc. (4) quidem, e. g.

² General Prologue, Forshall and Madden, Vol. I. pp. 57, 60; see the passage quoted in Section VII. p. lxx., below.

³ E.B.V., Introd. pp. lxviii. and lxix. (1904).

in I. Cor. v. 3, etc. (5) et, e. g. in I. Cor. v. 6, etc., also rarely 3he, e. g. Eph. v. 12, so þat, e. g. Phil. i. 14, and very frequently of course and. (6) igitur, e. g. in Eph. iv. 17, etc. (7) ergo, e. g. in Eph. vi. 14, etc. (8) þroptere, e. g. in Eph. v. 17, also, rarely, for, e. g. in Eph. vi. 13.

Another frequent translation is that of inuicem by eyper oper, as in I. Cor. vii. 5, or by with inne to gidere, as in Eph. iv. 32, and for and forwhy are very favourite conjunctions.

The number of loan-words in this version is larger than that in the L.V. or in the E.B.V. It is, on the other hand, about the same as in the E.V., or perhaps a little larger. This is due to the translator's preference for anglicising the Latin words of his Vulgate to finding the corresponding native word. Thus he prefers ewangelye (euangelium) to gospel, charite (caritas) to love, spyryt (spiritus) to g(h)ost (as a rule), suauyte (suauitas) to softness, mortificate (mortificatus) to slain, supplicacyouns (supplicationes) to beseechyng, susteynande (sustinens) to abiding.

Incidentally it may be remarked that this fashion in Biblical translation may well be one of the sources of the inkhorn terms which characterise much fifteenth and sixteenth century literature; some of the glosses, also, which introduce more learned words, e. g. Rom. vi. 6, þe consuetude of synne, and Rom. vi. 19, into consummacyoun of goode, suggest that pulpit-teaching may have been another. Indeed the Elizabethan critic Puttenham accuses preachers and schoolmasters of having introduced them into the language—

“ We finde in our English writers many wordes and speaches amendable, and ye shall see in some many inkhorne termes so ill-affected brought in by men of learning, as preachers or schoolemasters.”¹

These terms were not confined to Courtly Literature, and Puttenham speaks of them again as a feature of plays and interludes which particularly delighted the populace—

“ Finally as ye may ryme with wordes of all sortes be they of many sillables or few, so neuerthelesse is there a choise by which to make your cadence (before remembred) most commendable, for some wordes of exceeding great length, which have bene fetched from the Latin ink-horne or borrowed of strangers, the use of them in ryme is nothing pleasant, sauing perchaunce to the common people who reioyse much to be at playes and enterludes.”¹

From this it is clear that the use of such words is not conclusive evidence against a “popular” purpose in literature.

The proportions of loan-words in this text can be seen in the following example, where the words in the translation that are etymologically connected with the corresponding Latin words are marked with an asterisk (variations of spelling and dialect being disregarded).

Out of these 46 loan-words, 36 are etymologically connected with the words that they translate. The proportions in the following chapters, chosen at random, will illustrate the point further (the numbers in brackets are those of the etymologically connected words)—

A number of mistranslations disfigure the text; these are often due to inaccuracy in grammar, though usually in these cases the mistake is evidently due to a confusion between two Latin case-endings that are identical in form.

Thus in Rom. i. 23, yimaginis corruptibilis hominis is rendered : mannis ymage corruptible, where corruptibilis should agree with hominis; cp. L.V. of an ymage of a deedli man. In I. Cor. i. 2. the dat. ecclesie is translated as though it were gen. of þe kyrke. In Eph. iii. 10, the MS. reads : þat þe wisdom of God waxe knowyn manye formys, where in the Latin multiformis sapiencia dei, multiformis is the adj. in agreement with sapiencia. Cp. L.V. that the mychefold wisdom of God be knowun. In Rom. xvi. 23, Lat. Quartus frater is rendered þe fourthe broþer, whereas Quartus is a proper name. In II. Cor. vi. 16, dei uiui is rendered god of lyf, the adj. being taken for the noun uitae. In Rom. xvi. 23, Salutat vos Gayus hospes meus et uniuersae ecclesie is translated Gayus myn hostager and alle þe kyrke gretys ȝow, where the gen. sg. uniuersae ecclesie has been rendered by the nom. sg., thus giving a double subject to the sing. verb, salutat.

Other mistakes are due to the choice of the wrong meaning of a word of equivocal sense; this mistake is that against which the reviser of the Wycliffite Version was very careful to warn translators in his General Prologue.¹

But in translating of wordis equiuck, that is, that hath many significacions vndur oo lettre, mai liȝtli le pereil, for Austyn seith in the ij. book of Cristene Teching, that if equiuok wordis be not translated into the sense, either vndurstonding, of the autour, it is errour. . . .

Therfore a translatour hathe greet nede to studie wel the sentence, both bifore and aftir, and loke that suche equiuok wordis acorde with the sentence."

Examples from this text are—

In Rom. xi. 30, misericordiam consecuti estis, and in Rom. xi. 31, ut et ipsi misericordiam consequantur, the deponent verb is not only translated in the former instance by the English passive voice, but in both the literal meaning of follow is preferred to the secondary meaning obtain that is required by the sense. The translations of these two passages are respectively : ȝe ar mercy folwyd, and so þat þey schulden suye mercy: cp. L.V. ȝe han gete mercy, and that also thei geten merci. Thus the former case comes also into the first group of mistranslations due to grammatical inaccuracy; the same mistake occurs also in Rom. xi. 7; I. Tim. i. 13 and 16, and elsewhere. In Rom. viii. 9, the general sense of the passage has not been considered at all: Latin: Vos autem in carne non estis . . . si tamen spiritus dei habitat in vobis. MS.: But ȝee be not in þe flesch . . . so þat if þe spirite of god dwelle in ȝow. Cp. L.V.: But ȝe ben not in fleisch . . . if netheles the spirit of God dwellith in ȝou.

Sometimes the translator suggests two renderings of one word, between which he is unable to decide.¹

For instance, in I. Cor. vi. 5, ad uerecundiam is rendered by to ȝoure schame . . . or to ȝoure reverence, the former being the literal meaning, the latter the secondary meaning. In I. Cor. xv. 34, ad reuerenciam is translated by to ȝoure schame . . . or to ȝoure profyte. In Eph. v. 4, rem is rendered thyng or profyte.

Thirdly, some mistranslations are simply the result of inability to understand the Latin sentence, of taking one Latin word to be another similar to it, or of inaccuracy; such are—

Rom. i. 28: Latin: et sicut non probauerunt deum habere in noticia. MS.: and as þei profid god not to haue in knowyng þer synne. Cp. L.V.: And as thei preueden that thei hadden not god in knowyng.—Titus ii. 3: Latin: bene docentes. MS.: þei blessande. Cp. L.V.: wel techynge.—Eph. iii. 18: Latin: longitudo, latitudo. MS.: hardnesse . . . and longnesse. Cp. L.V.: the breedle and the lengthe.—I. Cor. vi. 10: Latin: neque auari. MS.: nor auoutryous men. Cp. L.V.: nether auerouse men.—I. Cor. x. 25: Latin: macello is rendered by cheke instead of by a word meaning shambles, meat-market (Wycl. bocherie), probably by confusion with Latin maxilla = jawbone; it is, however, just possible that the confusion occurred in the English text, and the scribe may have written cheke instead of chepe.

In some cases the grammar is correct, but the order of the words is so unnatural or so rigidly on the Latin model as to amount to a mistranslation, since none of the meaning of the original Latin is conveyed by the English.

Examples are—

Rom. ix. 26: Latin: vbi dictum est eis non plebs mea vos. MS.: where it is seyd to þem not my folc ȝee. Cp. L.V.: where it is seid to hem, not ȝe my puple.—Rom. ix. 30: Latin: apprehenderunt iusticiam iusticiam autem que ex fide est. MS.: þey toke þe ritwysnesse þe riztwysnesse; þat is of feiþ. Cp. L.V.: . . . han gete riztwisnesse, ȝhe, the riztwisnesse that is of feith.—I. Cor. xv. 28: Latin: ut sit deus omnia in omnibus. MS.: þat he bee god alle thynges in alle thynges. Cp. L.V.: that God be alle thingis in alle thingis.—I. Cor. xv. 26: Latin: Nouissima autem inimica destruetur mors. MS.: Forsoþe þe laste enemy schal be destroyed þat is deth. Cp. L.V.: And at the laste, deth the enemye schal be distried. Though the MS. translation here is misleading, it is more correct than the L.V., which is grammatically wrong.

Sometimes the gloss seems to imply a misunderstanding of the sense. This may, however, be due to some commentator on whose work the translator based his glosses.

Examples are—

I. Cor. xii. 28: Latin: opitulaciones gubernaciones (in a list of the gifts of the Spirit). MS.: opytulacyouns þat is to sey þem þe whylke bryngे rychesse to þe more gouernynges.—I. Cor. xv. 32: Latin: Si secundum hominem ad bestias pugnaui ephesi. MS.: . . . þat I hafe foughten or desputyd to þe beestys of Ephesy; þat is a geyn þe beestely lifande aftyr þe man þat is resonably for it is of þe man to belefyn and not to dye as a beeste: and if þe deade ryse not; þis is onely to do.

A certain number of omissions occur both in the Latin text and in the English translation. These are in most cases due in all probability to a scribe rather than to the translator. They are particularly numerous near the beginning of the work. For instance, in Rom. vi. 3 only part of the Latin verse is given, but the whole is translated: on the other hand, the Latin text of Rom. iii. 17 is given, but is not translated, and again in Rom. i. 32; iii. 26; viii. 3; ix. 15; xvi. 9; I. Cor. vi. 10, and other cases, part of the verse is omitted in the English.

However, a few small omissions seem to be due to the translator himself; such are—

Rom. iv. 18: Latin: et sicut arena que est in litore maris; MS.: and as þe grauelle of þe see.—Rom. i. 16: Latin: in salutem omni credenti; MS.: in to hele to alle folc.—In Rom. x. 3: the omission of the translation of the two words et suam seems to imply a lack of comprehension of the whole passage; the Latin reads: Ignorantes enim dei iusticiam et suam querentes statuere iusticie dei non sunt subiecti. MS.: For þey unknowande goddys riȝtwisnesse sekande for to stable; þei ben not subiect to þe riȝtwisnesse of god.

The additions to the text in the English rendering are numerous, though seldom of any length. They are all written in the same hand as the text itself, but as this is not the original MS. of the translator, the question arises as to whether these glosses are an integral part of the work or the interpolations of a reviser. An examination of them, however, leads to the conclusion that they form part of the translator's original work.

In the first place, the explanatory glosses are frequent in the early part of the work, e. g. in Romans and I. Corinthians, but in the later part they gradually become less so, and in the Epistles to Timothy, Titus, and the Hebrews they are rare. In the first five chapters of Romans, for example, there are 32 explanatory glosses, 13 in the first chapter of I. Corinthians, and 8 in the fourth chapter, whereas in the Epistle to Titus there is but 1, and in the first five chapters of the Epistle to the Hebrews only 3. This gradual diminution of the number of comments is parallel to the gradual increase in the length of the Latin passages translated, and both point to the conclusion that the translator came to do his work with more ease and less particularity.

Secondly, in some cases the nature of the gloss itself supports this assumption; in each of the following examples the addition has been made by a translator who perceived that his sentence was involved, or without point, or ambiguous, and tried to make it clearer.

Rom. v. 14: Into þe licesse of þe preuaricacyoun of Adam þe whilke þat is to say Adam is fourme of crist for to come.—Rom. vii. 11: For synne has diseyued me . . . by þe maundement; and by þat þat is to sey þe maundement it has slayn me.—Rom. vii. 15: For þat þat I wyrke. aftyr þe outer man I undyrstande not after þe inner man for I do not þat þat I wile þat is to sey good aftyr þe inner man but I do þat I hate. þat is to sey euylle.—Rom. vii. 17: Now þerfor I wyrke it not now; þat is to seye vndyr þe lawe but þe synne þat dwellis in me; þat is to sey in my flesch.—Rom. ix. 5: Of whom þey ben faderys of þe whylke crist is aftyr þe flesch þe whilke þat is to sey crist is god.—Rom. xv. 4: Alle thynges þat ben writen þat is of crist in holy bokys to oure doctrine þei ar wryten.—I. Cor. ii. 16: For who; þat is who þat is beestely; knowys þe wit of god . . . We forsoþe han þe wit of cryst.

The additions may be grouped under the following headings—

1. Explanatory Glosses, usually introduced by the formula þat is . . ., or þat is to sey . . .. Sometimes these are introduced in order to make the argument clearer by reference and repetition, as in Rom. v. 16 and xiv. 18¹; sometimes to make an expression clearer by amplification, as in I. Cor. i. 26, and sometimes to interpret by a more explicit statement, as in Rom. x. 6, 7, and vi. 6. Some explain metaphors, e.g. Rom. xii. 21, one or two suggest alternative explanations, e.g. I. Cor. xi. 10, and some are particularly theological or mystical in character.

The following examples are taken from the early chapters where these glosses are most frequent—

Rom. i. 18: ira dei: þe wrathe þat is þe peyne of god. iii. 20. omnis caro coram illo: alle flesch byfor hym þat is euery man fleschly lifande. 22. iusticia autem dei: þe riȝtwisnesse þefore of god þat is by þe whiche we ben iustified of god. 23. gloria dei: þe ioye of god þat is þe forgifnesse of god. 31. sed legem statuimus: but we stablyn þe lawe þat is we conferme þe lawe. v. 11. non solum autem sed et gloriamur: not only þerfor we schul be safe þat is in þe lif of hym; but also we ioyen. 16. et non sicut per vnum peccantem ita et donum: and not as be one synne þat is to sey of Adam so by þe gifte þat is to sey of god. 16. iudicium . . . ex vno est in condempnacionem: þe dome is of one þat is of one orygynal trespass of Adam brouȝt up in dampnacyoun. vi. 4. per baptismum in mortem: by baptem in to þe deþ þat is in to þe waschyng of synnes. 6. vetus homo noster: oure oolde man; þat is þe forme and þe consuetude of synne þe whilke is of vs. 19. in sanctificacionem: in to santificacyoun þat is in to consummacyoun of goode. 20. liberi fuistis iusticie: ȝee were free of riȝtwisnesse; þat is þe lordschype of riȝtwysnesse ȝou faylede. viii. 3. dampnauit peccatum in carne: he dampnyd synne in þe flesch; þat is in þe flesch of cryst doande awey synne. 22. omnis creatura: alle creature þat is to seye every man þat has Comyne with oþer creatures. 38. neque instancia: nor instaunce . þat is þise presente goodys or euylis.

x. 6. id est christum deducere : þat is to lede criste heþpen . þat is to seye to denye crist for to haue ascendid. 7. hoc est christum ex mortuis reuocare : þat is for to reuoke criste fro deth þat is for to seye to trowe þat crist descendide not in to helle. xiv. 18. in hoc : in þat þyng . þat is in riztwisnesse pece and ioye (repeated from the preceding verse). 22. qui non iudicat semet ipsum in eo quod probat : þat demys not hymself in þat þat he profys ; þat is he þe wylke doys none oper thyng þan he profys is profitable. 23. qui autem discernit si manduauerit : he þat descryues þat is metys trowande oper clene and oper vnclene if he hafe etyn. I. Cor. i. 17: non in sapiencia uerbi : not in wysdam of woord þat is in þe curyosyte and fayrhed of woordys. 18. uerbum enim crucis : þe woord of þe cros þat is þe prechygng of þe crosse : pereuntibus quidem stulticia est : to þe perschende it is folye . þat is to þe perschende it semys folye. 26. sapientes secundum carnem . non multi potentes . non multi nobiles : wyse after þe flesch þat is aftyr þe worldly wysdam nor manye myghty þat is with lordschype ; nor manye noble þat is thurgh schynynge of kynne. 28. ea que non sunt : þo thynges þat ben not þat is þat besemyde to be nocht. 29. ut non . . . omnis caro : þat not eche flesch þat is þat no man riztful or vnriztful. iv. 5. tunc laus erit vnicuique deo : þanne schal be reward or preysyng to ylke man of god þat is to þe good doande and to þe weel thenkande. 7. te discernit : descryues þee þat is fro þe compayne of þe loste. 15. pedagogorum . . . in christo : of pedagogys in crist þat is maysterys. 18. inflati sunt quidam : summe of þou þat is of þe phylosophrys ben blowyn with erþely wysdam.

Examples of glosses which were intended to prevent too literal an interpretation of the text or to explain a metaphor are the following—

Rom. xii. 21: þe colys of fyre þat is to seye þe hete of charite. xvi. 13. hys modyr and myn þat is to sey in benefetys. I. Cor. ii. 16: For who ; þat is who þat is beestely ; knowys þe wit of god. ix. 25. of alle he absteynys hym þe whilke lettyn þe mede of þe stryft. xiv. 9. spekyng in þe ayre þat is with a veyn strook of þe ayre.

Glosses which suggest alternative explanations are exemplified by—

I. Cor. xi. 10: velamen habere super caput et propter angelos : to haue a veyl vp on hyre hed ; and þat for aungelys þat is for þe reuerence of preestis ; þe whylke are þe messagers of god ; or ellis in auntyr þat þe preestys byholdande in to þe face of hyr be stird to lecherrye. xi. 28. probet autem seipsum homo : þefore profe a man hymselfe . þat is examyne or purge hymself. II. Cor. vi. 4: in necessitatibus : nedys of lyfode or cloþyng.

Theological or mystical interpretations are—

Rom. xiv. 7 : For none of ȝou lifes to hymself þat is spyrytually in vertues ; and no man dyes to hymself þat is to vices to hymself . but to oure lord. xiv. 8. we lyfen in lyff of vertues . . . wheþer we dyen to vices and synnes we dyen to oure lord. þat is to þe symylytude of cryste in woise deþ we ar baptysyd. I. Cor. iii. 8 : he forsoþe þat plantys and he þat moystys ben one thyng as in þe maner of nature ; so in þe resoun of mysterie. Heb. xi. 21 : he worshipide þe somet of his ȝerde . þat is crist by whom in Egipt he hadde þe lordschipe and þe ȝerde of dyscyplyne. xii. 1. so grett a cloude of witnesse insert to vs . þat is so grett a multitude of seyntus þat fleen as cloudys and scheeldyn fro þe swellynge of tribulacyoun and reynyn to vs þurgh loris of þe feith of goode werkys.

2. Alternative Renderings of Latin words and phrases also occur incorporated into the text, as they do in the Wycliffite Versions, especially the earlier.

In this text they are not very common, and are much fewer in number than the explanatory glosses; they are rarer here, too, than in the earlier Wycliffite Version, but more common than in the later; for instance, in Romans, chap. i., there are eighteen alternative readings in the E.V., three in this text, and none in the L.V.

They may be classified as—

- (a) alternative translations of separate words, synonyms, and
- (b) alternative renderings involving differences of meaning.

Examples are—

(a) Rom. iv. 19 : infirmatus : fleecehyng or vnable. v. 13. imputabatur : put to or trowyd. I. Cor. iv. 5 : laus : reward or preysyng. xiv. 13. ut interpretetur : þat he interprete or expowne. Tit. iii. 8 : curent : þat þei chargyn or bysyen. Heb. i. 3 : figura : figure or prente. iii. 17. cadauera : þe careynys or bodyes. v. 1. assumptus : takyn- or chosyn. v. 11. grandis : gret . . . or deep or staytle.

(b) Rom. i. 5 : apostolatum : ofice of apostil or power of þe office of apostyl. i. 7. uocatis sanctis : callid holy or in holynesse. i. 17. Iustus autem ex fide uiuit : forsoþe þe riȝtwise man lifes of þe feyth or elles þus Riȝtwise he is of ze feith eche man þat riȝtwis is. x. 19. ego . . . uos adducam : I schal lede ȝou or suffre ȝou to be led. I. Cor. xv. 32 : pugnaui : I hafe foughten or desputyd. II. Cor. vi. 3 : offensiorem : wrathe or sclaundre. Tit. i. 5 : gracia : grace or cause.

3. Amplifications, under which are included the various means, other than actual glosses, by which the translator tried to make his rendering of the Latin original clearer and more vivid, references to other books of the Bible, and other miscellaneous insertions. They are particularly frequent at the beginning of the work.

A certain amount of amplification is inevitable in rendering a Latin text into English; for instance, a Latin adjective frequently requires the support of a noun in English, and this has accordingly been supplied by the translator in many cases, e. g.—

Rom. iii. 8: bona = goode thynges. viii. 34: ad dexteram = at þe riȝt half. I. Cor. v. 13: malum = þe euylle men. Heb. iii. 4: omnia = alle thyngus.

No importance can be attached to these, but some of the other amplifications may be grouped under the following headings, though there still remain many unclassified additions.

(a) Amplification of a Latin noun by an English adjective.

Rom. iv. 3: scriptura = holy writ. 18. contra spem = ageyn þe firste hope. I. Cor. ii. 4: spiritus = þe spyrite holy. 13. in doctrina spiritus = þe doctryne of þe holy gost. iii. 13. in igne = in þe fyre purgeande. vi. 7. iniuriam = open wrong; fraudem = priue fraude. xiv. 2. lingua = þe tunge vñknowen. Tit. iii. 5: suam misericordiam = his myche mercy.

(b) Amplifications of one noun by a phrase containing another.

Rom. i. 18: impietatem = wickednesse in god. ii. 7. pacienciam = pacyence of god. iii. 25. deus = god þe fadyr. 27. factorum = by þe lawe of werkys. v. 16. donum = þe gifte of þe holy goost. xv. 23. locum non habens = hafande no stede of dwellyng. I. Cor. i. 20. conquesitor = sekar of kyndys. ii. 7. in misterio = in mysterye of þe incarnacyoun. iv. 21. in uirga = in ȝerde of correccyoun. vi. 3. angelos = aungelis of god. xi. 34. in iudicium = in to þe dome of þe dampnacyoun. Heb. i. 9: deus deus tuus = þou god þe sone þi god þe fader.¹

(c) Rhetorical repetitions and exclamations.

(g) There remain a few other additions—glosses or amplifications—which call for special notice; such are—

Rom. xiv. 5: Forwhy an oþer man demys bytwen day and day þat is to sey a day set bytwene to be chosyn in abstinence. The reference here to Abstinence seems to be suggested by the context, not to have any special reference to the fasts prescribed by the Church. The gloss is not very intelligible, and the passage seems to have presented a difficulty, for the Later Wycliffite Version does not make it at all clear; it reads: Forwhi oon demeth a day bitwixe a dai, another demeth ech dai.

I. Cor. iv. 3: To me forsoþe it is but for a lityl þat I be demyd of ȝow. þat is an vntrewȝ dyspensere or of men þat is of men whyles þey ben in þeyr day. The first part of this gloss is merely an explanation of the text as it stands, but in the second part the commentator understood the Latin die literally as day, as did the Wycliffite reviser, whereas here it seems to mean the session of a Court; cp. L.V. of mannes day, and A.V. of man's judgment. “The idea of day as implying judgment is common in Hebrew, and would be directly assisted by such expressions as dicem dicere = to fix a day for judgment.”¹

I. Cor. iv. 8: Now bee ȝee fyld, now be ȝee maad ryche; withouten vs ȝee regnyn; not þat þe apostyl spekys here by a fygure þat is callyd yronya. For a discussion of this see Section VI. p. lxiii.

I. Cor. vi. 9: Molles. Molles ar seyd þoo þat dyshoneeste þe vygor or þe strengþe of þe kynde of þe body eneruyd. This is an example of one or two cases in which the writer has used the actual Latin word in his translation, not having found a suitable rendering; he finds it necessary, therefore, to explain its meaning at some length.

I. Cor. viii. 5: þer ben many goddys and manye lordys in particypacyoun of þe godhed. This gloss has no reference to Wyclif's doctrine of Dominion; it arises out of the context, and implies merely the gods of heathen mythology.

I. Cor. ix. 11: Is it gret if we schere ȝoure fleschly þyngys þat is temporal þinges þe whiche ben grauntyd to þe lyf and to þe nede of þe flesch. This explanation seems to be added in order to guard against the interpretation of fleschly in a derogatory sense, which was then frequently attached to it.

I. Cor. x. 7: þe puple sat to ete and to drynke and he ros vp to pleye. þat is to seye to make pleyes in þe worschyping of þe ydole. The N.E.D. gives instances of the use of the noun play from the time of King Alfred onwards in the sense of “a dramatic or theatrical performance,” including one example from Wyclif (Wks. 1880, p. 429): As men seyen in þe pleyn of ȝork. It is also used from the earliest times in the sense of “a particular diversion, game, or sport.”

This gloss may contain an allusion to the religious plays, and if so the allusion is derogatory.

Eph. vi. 12: Ageyn þe gostly spyritis of ylle in heuyns þat is in this lowere eyre. This is an allusion to the widespread mediæval belief that the air was the abode of Devils, which perhaps arose from Eph. ii. 2: The prince of the power of the air (A.V.). Milton makes use of this idea for his machinery in Paradise Lost and Paradise Regained, cp. Par. Lost, x. ll. 188-9—

“Through the air,
The realm itself of Satan long usurped.”

And Par. Reg., i. ll. 39-41—

“In mid air
To council summons all his mighty peers,
Within thick clouds and dark ten-fold involved.”

There is no hint of this allusion in the L.V., which reads: azens gouernours of the world of these derknessis, azens spiritual thingis of wickidnesse, in heuenli thingis.

There are very few glosses which imply that the writer was making use of a commentary for his explanations; almost all arise directly out of the text, and many are necessitated by the poor quality of the translation. For one or two, however, some source must be assumed, though it has not been traced; such are—

I. Cor. i. 16: þe hows of stephan . þat is þe name of þat wydow. Here the Latin: stephane has been taken wrongly as a feminine genitive singular.

I. Cor. iv. 9: God has schewyd vs þe laste apostolys lyke vnto þe laste halewys þat is Enncc and Elye in tribalaciouns as ordeyned to þe deþ.

I. Cor. ix. 20: to þem þat ben vndyr þe lawe; þat is to seye þe Samaritanys þe whilke resceyfe onely þe fyue bokys of Moyses.

I. Cor. xi. 10: þe womman owes to haue a veyl vp on hyre hed and þat for aungelys þat is for þe reuerence of preestis; þe whylke are þe messagers of god: or ellis in auntyr þat þe preestis byholdande in to þe face of hyr be stird to lecherrye. The first of these two attempts to explain the admittedly obscure and difficult passage would, if original, imply some knowledge of Greek, since it is founded on the literal translation of the Greek $\alpha\gamma\gamma\acute{\epsilon}\lambda\omega\ς$ by messengers, not angels. Probably, therefore, this is founded on some mediæval commentary. The alternative explanation is probably the writer's own suggestion; no doctrinal question seems to be involved.

(h) The amplifications and glosses opposite which the names Ambrose or Augustine have been written require special consideration. They have been duly noted in the text. The name Augustinus is only written once, at I. Cor. xv. 45, and this gloss is too slight to afford a clue by which it might be traced to any particular work of St. Augustine.

The name Ambrosius is written seven times, viz. at I. Cor. x. 13, xiv. 30, xv. 3; II. Cor. iii. 12, v. 13, vii. 11, and xi. 8.

It has not been found possible to trace all these references satisfactorily, but one or two seem to have been based upon a commentary on the Pauline Epistles which was attributed to St. Ambrose in the Middle Ages. This is now held to be by another writer, to whom the name of Ambrosiaster has been given.¹

The above passages have been compared with the corresponding parts of this commentary, and in the following cases there seems to be some relationship between the two works.

I. Cor. xiv. 30: MS. Latin. Quod si alij reuelatum sit sedenti prior taceat.—MS. English. For if it be schewyd to anoþer sittande, bettere þe firste holde he syience forwhy sumtyme it is gifen to a lowere þat is not gifen to an heyere.—Ambrosiaster. Id est, permittat potior inferiori, ut si potest dicat: nec aegreferat; quia potest et illi dari donum, ut dicat, cum videtur inferiori, quod potiori concessum non est. Sicut enim totum uni concedi non potest, licet potiori; ita et non potest alicui, quamvis inferiori, nihil impertiri; ut nemo sit vacuus a gratia dei.

Here the gist of the commentary is given by the gloss, and in the text there is no trace of the idea, common to both, of an inferior being deferred to by a superior.

I. Cor. xv. 3: MS. Latin. Tradidi enim vobis in primis quod et accepi quoniam christus mortuus est pro peccatis nostris secundum scripturas.—MS. English. For I hafe betake to ȝou first þat I hafe tan of þe holy gost, þat crist is dead for oure synnes aftyr holy writtes of oolde testament þe whylke profecyde þe deþ of crist to be come.

The commentary here consists of a long discussion of the use of the past tense in the Old Testament prophecies of the death of Christ, with examples. There may be some connection between this and the phrase to be come in the gloss, with its compound past tense. If this be so, the phrase can only be in the nature of a reminder to some one teaching or preaching from the English text.

II. Cor. iii. 12 : MS. Latin. Habentes igitur tales spem multa fiducia vtimur.—MS. English. Therfor we hafande suych an hope we vsen a greet trest . þat is we excersysen vs þurgh use in goode werkys þurgh þat trest.

The first part of the long commentary upon this verse has no resemblance to the gloss, but one sentence towards the end may perhaps have suggested the gloss. It is : Nunc itaque opus est, ut crescat in nobis fiducia bonis actibus parata.

II. Cor. v. 13 : MS. Latin. Siue enim mente excedimus deo siue sobrij sumus uobis.—MS. English. For wheþer we exedyng in thoght or we ben sobre to ȝou to god it is to be left and not of man to be demyd.—Ambrosiaster. Sive enim mente excedimus, deo ; sive sanum sapimus, vobis. Hoc dicit, quia si elate vel superbe putatur locutus ; quia laudare se visus est, verum dicens, Deo hoc remittendum ; si autem non superbe intelligitur, sed ad gloriam audientium esse locutus, Corinthiis proficere dicit ; ut tunc sanum sit dictum audientibus, si ita intelligatur ut dictum est ; si autem jactanter putetur dictum, velut insanum deo dimittendum ; omnis enim superbia velut insania habetur.

Here the phrase in the gloss : to god it is to be left, corresponds to the Deo hoc remittendum of the commentary, but it is noteworthy that the Latin texts are not identical.

II. Cor. vii. 11 : In this case both the gloss and the commentary proceed upon the same plan of working the comments into the text, but there is no other similarity between them. The additional matter is entirely different, and the Latin texts are also different, for the series of nouns (sed defensionem ; sed indignacionem ; sed timorem, etc., A.V. yea, what clearing of yourselves, yea, what indignation, yea, what fear etc.) vary greatly from each other. The last sentence of the gloss,—þe grete synne of hym þat hadde his faderys wyfe—is a reference to I. Cor. v. 1, and has probably been supplied by the writer himself.

In the remaining cases there is no resemblance whatever between the glosses and this particular commentary ; the conclusion is that the Ambrosiaster commentary may possibly have been one of the sources for these glosses, but it cannot have been the only one. Possibly the marginal references were merely to remind the reader of the existence of commentaries by the Fathers upon these passages, which were considered important.

SECTION VI. The Origin and Purpose of the Translation.

This translation of the Pauline Epistles has no Prologue or other Introduction to explain how it came to be made, and its origin and purpose can, therefore, only be inferred from the nature of the work itself.

The North Midland characteristics of its English¹ connect it with a large group of renderings of parts of the New Testament into English. There are several of these renderings extant, whether with or without an accompanying commentary, from the fourteenth century, and all except one originated in the north of England. They are—

- (1) Commentaries on the Gospels of St. Matthew, St. Mark and St. Luke.²
- (2) A Version of the Acts and Catholic Epistles with parts of St. Matthew's Gospel.³
- (3) The Apocalypse, with a commentary.⁴
- (4) The Version of the Pauline Epistles in MS. Parker, 32. The southern rendering mentioned above is that of the—
- (5) Pauline Epistles and the Epistles of St. James, St. Peter, and St. John, contained in MS. Selwyn Coll. 108. L.I., and printed by Miss Paues.³

All of these, including the present version of the Pauline Epistles, seem to have been orthodox in origin, and to have been written for the clergy, the religious orders, or possibly the upper classes of the laity. In several cases this is proved by the address of the translator to his readers,⁵ but in the case of the Pauline Epistles of MS. Parker, 32, such evidence is lacking,¹ and no external references to it have been found. There is no prologue such as that prefixed to the Later Wycliffite Version,² or the dialogue between a monk, a nun, and their brother superior, which forms the Introduction to the E.B.V.³ Conclusions as to its orthodoxy and as to its purpose can, therefore, only be drawn from the text itself and the glosses contained in it.

Those passages which seem to throw most light on the question of orthodoxy are the following—

Rom. xiii. 1: Ilke soule þat is euery man be it subiect to þise powers abouen þat is to kynges to princys to trybunys to centuryounys and to seculerys goode or euylle.

This gloss might seem in two ways to suggest the influence of Wyclif's teaching. The use of the word seculerys might come more easily from one to whom the upholding of the secular priests against the regular orders was a matter of interest, and the emphasis laid upon the claims of authority by the addition of the words goode or euylle fits in with Wyclif's doctrine of Dominion and his insistence that those in authority must be obeyed, as in his famous phrase: "God must obey the Devil." On the other hand, the word seculerys is used here not of ecclesiastics but of lay rulers, and occurs quite naturally; the whole gloss is a legitimate expansion of the words commented on, and is too general to serve as evidence of definitely Wycliffite sentiment.

I. Cor. i. 24: To þem callid Iewys or Grekys þat is to þem þe whilke ar kallid with predestynacyoun to þe lyf.

This gloss, again, might seem to suggest some special theological point of view preferred by the translator, but the doctrine of predestination was not of controversial importance in the fourteenth century; there is no reference to it in the list of heresies attributed to Wyclif and condemned by the Council of Constance in 1418, and the gloss may be considered a perfectly correct and orthodox expansion of the translation.

I. Cor. ix. 9: þou schalte not bynde to þe mouth of þe oxe plowande; þat is þou schalt not forbede þe prechour to lyfe of þe ewangelye þat is of þe prechyngh.

² Wycl. Bible, Vol. I. p. 1, f.

³ E.B.V., p. 1, f.; cp. also pp. 47, 48 (1904).

This is really a perfectly fair gloss on the text, ep. v. 14 in the same chapter and I. Tim. v. 18; but the emphasis laid on the passage by this particular interpretation of the metaphor may perhaps show an anti-Wycliffite tendency, since Wyclif advocated, in some cases, the alienation of Church property.

I. Cor. ix. 13 : þei þat wyrken in þe temple as werkmen . . . þei þat serfen to þe auteer as preestys.

This careful distinction between the priests who serve the altar and the other orders is distinctly non-Wycliffite if not anti-Wycliffite. The strong hostility of the orthodox members of the Church to Wyclif's eucharistic doctrines was always partly due to the realisation of the close connection between the Roman doctrine of Transubstantiation and the sacerdotal claims of the priesthood.

II. Cor. xi. 26 : In perelys in false freris is the translation of periculis in falsis fratribus, where the Wycliffite versions read false britheren.

The MS. rendering is not necessarily to be considered Wycliffite; it may equally well represent a secular or a monastic point of view, since both these sections of the orthodox Church were opposed to the friars.

There are, lastly, three glosses similar to each other which seem to be directed against some definite abuse, or to reveal a personal point of view. They are—

II. Cor. ii. 17 : But we spekyn þe woord of god in pureness not forwynnyng, nor with mengyng of fables but as we hafe lernyd of god. II. Cor. iv. 2 : Not goande in falsnes of ypocrisyne nor auowtriande þe woord of god þurh mengyng of falste or prechynge forwynnyng. II. Cor. vii. 2 : No man we corruptyn with mengyng of falsyte as þe false apostolys don.

This insistent condemnation of preaching for gain may be an attack by a member of the orthodox party or by a follower of Wyclif against friars and pardoners; Chaucer's Pardoner admits to his fellow-pilgrims that his " entente is nat but for to wynne " in preaching.¹

The phrase mengyng of fables or falsyte may be an orthodox censure on the preaching of the Lollards, though it may possibly be a more general attack on the anecdotal style of sermon which obtained in the fourteenth century, especially among pardoners and friars. Chaucer's Pardoner again affords an illustration—

“ Thanne telle I hem ensamples many oon
 Of olde stories longe time agoon,
 For lewed peple loven tales olde.”¹

These three glosses seem to suggest that the writer was a preacher of sober and learned discourses, with his own condemnatory opinions of “ popular sermons.”

From these glosses it may be concluded that the translator was orthodox, since there is no evidence of Wycliffite leanings in his work, while there is some slight suggestion of Anti-Wycliffite views, especially in the gloss upon I. Cor. ix. 13. On the whole the evidence is slight; there is, indeed, hardly enough to indicate that he was interested in or aware of the current heresies. In a work belonging to the North or North Midlands this is not surprising, even at the very end of the fourteenth century. Certainly, Lollardy reached Leicestershire and Northamptonshire before the death of Richard II., but it did not spread to Lincolnshire till the fifteenth century.² Very little is known of Lollardy in Scotland; there is no evidence of its presence there until much later, and Murdoch Nisbet’s rendering of the L.V. into Scots was probably not made until 1513–22.³

It is well known that the Church was not opposed to vernacular translations of the Bible until the prohibitions of Archbishop Arundel in 1408/9. French versions were current among the upper classes in England before Wyyclif’s time,⁴ and there were, as has been seen, many orthodox versions of parts of the Bible in English. The author of Piers the Plowman was not uttering heretical views when he made Thought say that it was part of the work of Dobet to translate the Bible; he—

. . . “hath rendred the Bible
And precheth to the poeple seynt Poules wordes.”¹

These versions must all have been restricted to the gentry and to the clergy, since the poor could not have afforded to purchase MSS. But the Wycliffite Bible was definitely intended for all classes, and it was its spread among the poor that led to the Arundel restrictions, not its inaccuracy. Even after 1408/9, persons considered suitable by the Bishops or the Provincial Councils could always obtain a licence to have a vernacular Bible in their possession, and it is known that the Wycliffite Bible was often so licensed. The Church, then, even after the suppression of Wyclif's teaching, cannot be said to have been opposed to translations of the Bible as such, but merely to their indiscriminate circulation, because they provided a basis for individual and often heretical exposition of the Scriptures, and there is no presumption that a fourteenth-century translator of the Bible, working before the issue of the Arundel prohibitions, would be other than a loyal son of the Church.

There was a widespread feeling at the time that, if a translation were made, the Latin original should not be entirely separated from the English rendering. For instance, the author of a treatise on the Ten Commandments, writing c. 1420–1434, says in his prefatory note—

“ And þerfor for þe blessinge and loue of god And oure lady; And of seint Michael, And of him þat made þis book, þat neuer man ne woman lete departe þe engeliche from þe latyn, for diuers causes þat been good and lawful to my felynge.”² of *Goddis Children*¹ upon the possession and use of vernacular versions are also noteworthy—

“ Neþeles I wole not repreue suche translaciouns, ne I repreue not to haue hem on Englische, ne to rede on hem where þei mowe stire ȝou to more deuocioun, and to þe loue of god. But utterli to vse hem on Englische and leeue þe Latin I holde it not commendable.”

There is nothing in this version of the Pauline Epistles which would have been censured by this author, especially as the Latin text is included, as it is not in the E.B.V. or the Wycliffite Versions. His is the Church's usual point of view; the actual making, possession, and reading of an English version are not condemned, provided that such a version is used as an aid to the study of the Latin text and not as a substitute for it.

The conclusion is, therefore, that this translation is orthodox in origin; there is no evidence against this, and it is rendered probable by the similarity of this to other contemporary northern translations of parts of the New Testament, the orthodoxy of which there is no reason to doubt,—by the very absence of controversial matter, by the presence of the Latin text, and by the comparatively early date.²

The question of the original purpose of the author in making this translation and the use for which it was intended can now be dealt with.

The opinions hitherto held by historians of the Bible in England as to the purpose of this work are various. The view held by Lewis was that it was made for the translator's own use; in this he is apparently followed by Moulton, and by Bagster, who adds the suggestion that it was to help in giving instruction. Baber, on the contrary, thought that it was meant for use by the congregations, Dr. Stoughton by a non-Wycliffite circle, and Prof. Lechler by ignorant priests.

Baber's opinion may be dismissed; it will be shown in Section VII. that the translation follows the Latin text too closely to be read independently of it, hence the work could have been of little use to ordinary members of a congregation.

Dr. Stoughton's arguments have already been dealt with.¹

The view of Lewis and Moulton that the translation was made for private devotional reading is not borne out by the character of the glosses, which clearly suggest explanation and exposition rather than reflection.

On the other hand, the unsystematic arrangement of translated passages and the irregular occurrence of the glosses militate against the suggestion of Prof. Lechler that the work was intended as a handbook for ignorant preachers.

There remains the theory of Bagster that the translation was made for the writer's own use in giving instruction, and a closer examination of the glosses gives considerable evidence for this view, and throws some light on the kind of instruction for which the work might be used.

The study of the Bible was an important part of the mediæval University course. In this, instruction in the Bible and Theology usually took the form of a dictation by the lecturer of a passage of the book under consideration, followed immediately by the dictation of a gloss or commentary upon the passage.² Hence in the catalogues of mediæval Libraries entries are frequently found of glossed Bibles or books of the Bible, as in the twelfth-century Catalogue of the Library of Christ Church, Canterbury, the fifteenth-century Catalogue of the Library of St. Augustine's, Canterbury, and in John Whytefeld's Catalogue, compiled in 1389, of the Library of Dover Priory.³ The Catalogue made in 1418 of the Library of Peterhouse, Cambridge, contains entries of a glossed gospel of St. John and of a brief tractate on the Epistles of St. Paul⁴ (i. e. the Commentary without the text). These were probably works of a different character from the MS. under consideration, being more methodical and theologically learned.

As to Schools, a good deal is known about their foundation and management in the Middle Ages, but not much about the instruction which was given in them. Many were ecclesiastical foundations, connected with Cathedral or Collegiate Churches or with Chantries; others were purely secular, and were connected with Guilds or Hospitals, or were quite independent foundations. The question of schools in or connected with monasteries is a very doubtful one, but it does not appear that the monasteries maintained, at any rate before the fourteenth century,¹ any schools open to others than their own inmates.² Before then the only teaching given had been to those few boys who were offered by their parents for monastic life at an early age, and these were merely taught the rule of their order and singing for the choir. Later on there are records of some poor boys being maintained by the richer houses, but nothing is said about their education, though a little may have been provided by the chaplain of the Almonry.³

The ecclesiastical foundations were for the most part controlled by the secular clergy; from the meagre evidence as to the curriculum in these schools it does not appear that the Bible itself was taught as a rule, except the Psalms, the most usual book of instruction. A record of 1361 states that the boys in the school at Penrith, founded by the Bishop of Carlisle, were taught super psalterijs [sic], the grammar of Donatus, and singing.⁴

On the other hand, the Chantry certificates and warrants made in the reigns of Henry VIII. and Edward VI. show that even the school in so remote a place as Burgh (Brough) under Stainmore in Westmorland contained a volume of six books of the Bible, called glosa ordinaria, valued at 13s. 4d.¹ These documents contain very few entries of books, and this is the only place where a Bible is mentioned.

There is evidence that the schools managed by the secular clergy were sometimes attended by those in minor orders. Twelfth-century records of this remain with regard to both Worcester and Lincoln.² At the former place, the four chaplains of the Carnary Chapel had to go to school daily, and lectures were given from 6 a.m. to 9 a.m. The school which they attended may have been a grammar school or a divinity school. Biblical instruction would certainly have been given in these cases, and for such instruction the work in this MS. is in many ways adapted.

In addition to this professional instruction there was more general instruction from the pulpit, both in monasteries to congregations of monks, and in ordinary churches to the general public.

The duty of the secular clergy in teaching the people, as Chaucer tells us that his Poor Parson did, was evidently considered to be very important. It is clearly and emphatically stated in a statute³ of the diocesan synod of Carlisle held in 1259. The clergy of the diocese are to be subjected to a periodical inspection, and asked—

“whether they know the Decalogue, that is the ten Precepts of the Law of Moses, and that they preach and explain them to the people entrusted to them; and whether they know how to repeat the Seven Deadly Sins and to preach them to be avoided by the people; and whether they know simply the Seven Sacraments; and whether they have at least a simple understanding of the Faith according to what is contained in the Psalm

³ Statuta Karleolensis, MS. No. 26.

Quicumque Vult, and in the larger Creed, and know how to instruct the people entrusted to them in these things.”¹

The preaching friars, as well as the secular clergy, taught the people from the pulpit, often with the assistance of glosses or commentaries. The friar in Chaucer’s Sumnour’s Tale explains that he preaches—

“Nat al after the text of hooly writ;
For it is hard to yow, as I suppose.
And therfore wol I teche yow al the close.
Glosynge is a glorious thyng certeyn,
For lettre sleeth, so as we clerkes seyn.”²

Ironical as it is, this passage is contemporary evidence of the kind of preaching then in vogue, and for such preaching the MS., with its convenient juxtaposition of the Latin and English passages, and its elucidating comments, would clearly be useful, though it is, as will be shown, not adapted in some ways for ordinary preaching purposes.

The character of the glosses and amplifications themselves has already been examined in Section V., and certain kinds of additions there grouped together bear on the purpose of the translation, and point directly to the conclusion that it was meant for use by a teacher or preacher. Those that do so most clearly are those that help to make a statement more emphatic, especially by putting it negatively as well as positively—see Section V. 3 (e) (γ). This way of looking at a thing from both sides is particularly convincing as to the didactic purpose of the work. Almost equally so are the phrases which recapitulate preceding arguments, or anticipate what follows—see Section V. 3 (e) (β), thus making the subject-matter of the whole passage clear at once and continuously. Again, the rhetorical repetitions and exclamations, and the phrases of address inserted for emphasis (Section V. 3. c, d) suggest that the writer was thinking of expounding or declaiming the text rather than merely reading it or meditating upon it. The references in the text to other books in the Bible (see Section V. 3. f) would be particularly useful to a preacher as reminders, but they are too vague to serve any other purpose. The same is true of the marginal references to passages in the writings of St. Augustine and St. Ambrose (Section V. 3. h). The explanatory glosses, too (Section V. 1), would afford excellent help to any one teaching from the Bible, particularly those which explain metaphors and suggest alternative interpretations. It is noteworthy that these are quite different in character from the alternative renderings of separate words which occur very frequently in the earlier of the two Wycliffite versions,¹ which was intended to be read by all classes.

There are a few other additions to the text not noted in Section V. which afford some evidence in support of this theory of didactic purpose, and suggest that the writer, in spite of the occasional rhetorical treatment of his work that might belong to the pulpit rather than the teacher's desk, had, on the whole, an audience of students able to follow the Vulgate Latin in his mind—an audience such as might be found in a school for those in minor orders, or in a monastery—rather than an ordinary congregation of laity.

I. Cor. iv. 8: Now bee ȝee fyld . now be ȝee maad ryche; with outen vs ȝee regnyn; not [sic] þat þe apostyl spekys here by a fygure þat is callyd yronya.

This is evidently a gloss intended for a teacher; the use of the learned word yronya, and of other learned words in glosses (see Section V.) shows that the writer can hardly have meant his work for the common people, who would not have understood it.

Rom. xiv. 6: He þat etys þat is alle thynges he etys to oure lord . . .
he þat etys not þat is he þat abstenes to oure lord he etys not; þat is 'in the honour of oure lord it is þat he etys not; and he thankys god for þe abstynence gifен vnto hym.

Here the text is filled out, point after point being carefully emphasised so that nothing be lost by untrained minds because of the conciseness of the original.

I. Cor. vii. 18 : . . . be he not circumeyded ; þat is be he not constreyned to þe jewys vse.

By this gloss the significance to the argument of the difficult word is made clear.

I. Cor. ix. 4 : Wheþer we hafe not power of etyng and drynkyng ȝoure thyngys þat is of lyfynge of ȝoure goodys . as þof he seyde ȝis we hafe.

Here the answer is duly supplied to the rhetorical question in the text, as though to remind a teacher that a slightly educated person might not perceive that an affirmative answer was really implied.

I. Cor. xii. 3 : No man may seye þat is verrely in thouȝt woord and werk iesus is lord but in þe holy gost.

This phrase gets the full meaning out of the sentence, and may well have been the text of a discourse.

I. Cor. xiv. 26 : Ylkeone of ȝou has þe salm . þat is þurgh þe grace of god vndyrstandys þe salmys ; an oþer has þe tongue . þat is to seye dyuerse kyndes of tonges an oþer has lore of thewys an oþer has þe apocalipse . þat is to sey reuelacyoun an oþer has interpretacyoun . þat is to sey exposycyoun of scripturys.

Here an explanatory note is added to each phrase so that none of the meaning may be lost or assumed as known. This passage illustrates the careful exactness with which the argument of the original is followed, the recapitulations, amplifications, and explanations with which each point is secured. The same characteristics have been illustrated by other glosses already quoted in Section V.

Apart from the additions themselves there are one or two points which are also in favour of this theory that the work was undertaken by a cleric for his own use in preaching or teaching.

The gradual change in the length of the passages translated at a time and in the frequency of the glosses suggests that the writer grew more at home in his work as he proceeded, and no longer required so many reminders¹; and also that he was not thinking so much of the needs of other teachers who might make use of his work as of himself.

The presence of the Latin text is also significant, since it is absent in both the Wycliffite versions, and also in the E.B.V., in the former case because they were not intended for ecclesiastics alone, but for the whole nation, and in the latter because the persons for whom it was made could not understand the Vulgate, so that to include the Latin text would obviously have been superfluous. Richard Rolle's Psalter, which gives the Latin text, is altogether of a different character, since it was meant for private reading and meditation, and included a commentary.

The conclusions, then, to be drawn from records of mediæval religious instruction, and from an examination of the text itself, are that this translation was not made for ordinary reading by all and sundry, as the Wycliffite versions were, since in addition to other reasons its English is too awkward and unintelligible for those who could not refer to the Latin text, which is included in the work. It does not seem likely that it was meant for the private study of educated persons, nor that the author made it, as Richard Rolle did his Psalter, for some friend, clerical or lay; the character of many of the glosses goes against both these possibilities, and in the latter case there would probably have been some indication of its purpose in the MS. or in the work itself. Again, its comments are too simple in character and desultory in method for it to have been used in University teaching. Rather, it appears to come from one who was interested in the question of preaching—a supposition borne out by the glosses on II. Cor. ii. 17, iv. 2, and vii. 2, quoted on p. lv.—and knew something of rhetorical methods. The whole nature of the work suggests that it was made for the author's personal use in expounding Pauline arguments or in basing sermons upon them. The glosses almost all arise quite simply out of the context, and very few imply the use of any learned sources; this fact alone precludes the supposition that the work was intended as a text-book for advanced teaching, and so does its want of method. The Carlisle statute quoted above shows that the secular clergy were expected to teach from the pulpit; that glosses were used in sermons is certain from Chaucer's ironical reference to this method of exposition in the Sumnour's Tale, and there are frequent allusions to it in Piers the Plowman.

On the other hand, the work would be equally well adapted for the use of a teacher in a school addressing an audience composed of students who were capable of following, more or less, the passages in Latin as he read them. A similar audience would no doubt be provided by a congregation of monks, but the close way in which the argument is followed and its points emphasised, anticipated, and recapitulated, as in I. Cor. xiv. 26, suggests that it may well have been used by a teacher in a school such as that attended by the chaplains of the Carnary Chapel at Worcester. The absence of book-learning in the glosses would not be felt in the instruction of slightly educated men in minor orders, for whom the proper understanding of the Pauline argument was of the first importance. The large number of learned words contained both in text and glosses, as in I. Cor. iv. 8, support this suggestion of pedagogic use, but they are not a conclusive proof, since if the people found them pleasing in religious plays,¹ they would no doubt not dislike them in sermons.

The translation is certainly not Wycliffite but orthodox, and is such that the Church can have found no reason for prohibiting its use. It was made by an ecclesiastic—monk or secular clerk, but not friar, since a friar would never have translated in falsis fratribus by in false freris.² A monk would have more leisure and perhaps more learning for such a work than a secular clerk, but would be less likely to have so marked a bent for teaching or preaching as that displayed by the author.

As to the date when the translation was made, it is impossible to determine an exact date in the absence of any external evidence or any definite clues in the work itself. There is perhaps a slight indication in Col. i. 29, which reads : “I trauayle in striuande agynus þe rebelys.” This interpolation seems quite gratuitous, and may perhaps indicate a date soon after 1381.

The language-forms point to the latter part of the fourteenth century,³ and the handwriting is of the same date, or perhaps a little later.⁴

⁴ See Section I.

The translation may have preceded the Wycliffite versions, and at any rate was probably not long after them, since when these translations of the complete Bible became widely known there would be less likelihood of such halting and laborious translations of portions of it being made.

In any case it was almost certainly made before 1408/9, when, by the Constitutions of Archbishop Arundel, the use of all English versions made in the time of Wycliff or since and the making of new ones were strictly forbidden to all, clerical and lay alike.¹

SECTION VII. The Translation compared with its Contemporaries.

The translations of the Bible in the fourteenth century form part of a general activity in translating in England at that time. Most of the literary production, from that of the "grand translateur" downwards, consisted of translations and adaptations both in verse and prose, of foreign originals. Here it is only necessary to consider those in prose; these differ widely in character. In the first place there are those admirable renderings which combine a reasonable amount of accuracy with idiomatic and natural English, such as Chaucer's Boethius; on the one side of these are the free and unpedantic translations which regard the spirit rather than the letter, such as The Travels of Sir John Maundeville and John Trevisa's translations of Higden's Polychronicon and of the De Proprietatibus Rerum of Bartholomæus Angelicus; and on the other side are those works which are little more than word for word construing from their respective originals, such as Dan Michel's Ayenbite of Inwit and Richard Rolle's Psalter, the former being a translation from the French, the latter from the Vulgate Latin. There is interesting contemporary evidence that the questions of translations generally, and of the claims of literal as against idiomatic rendering, were being discussed. The author of the *Chastisynge of Goddis Children*¹ recognises the arguments then current against translating the Bible into English at all, but is not himself utterly opposed to vernacular renderings and their moderate use. He writes—

“ Many men repreueþ to haue þe Sawter or Matyns or þe Gospel in Englisch or þe Bible, bicause þei moun not be translatid in-to no vulgar word bi þe word as it stondiþ wiþoute greet circumlocucioun aftir þe felyng of þe first writeris whiche translatiden þat in-to Latyn bi þe teching of þe Hooli Gost. Neþeles I wole not repreue suche translaciouns, ne I repreue not to haue hem on Englische.”

The question of the advisability of translations at all is discussed at greater length in a Dialogue between a Lord and a Clerk upon Translation,² written by John Trevisa probably about the year 1387, when he translated Higden's Polychronicon, for the Lord urges the Clerk in the dialogue to translate the “books of Chronicles” of “Ranulphus, monk of Chester.” The reasons for translating these and other useful works into English are set forward by the Lord, who demolishes the objections raised by the Clerk. Translations of the Bible are only mentioned in illustration of the general argument. The Septuagint, the Vulgate, and various Old English renderings are adduced by the Lord to show that Biblical translations have always been considered advisable, and the prevalent contemporary opinion that they were then particularly necessary, in spite of a certain prejudice against them (voiced by the Clerk), is expressed in the following passage—

“ Also holy wrytte in Latyn is bothe good and fayr And yet for to make a sermone of holy wrytte al in latyn to men that can Englyssh and no latyn, it were a lewd dede, for they be neuer the wyser For the latyn but it be told hem in Englyssh what it is to mene. And it maye not be told in englissh what the latyn is to mene without translacion out of latyn in to Englysshe. Thenne it nedeth to haue an englysshe translacion and for to kepe it in mynde that it be not foryeten it is bettre that such a translacion be made and wryten, than sayd and not wryten.”¹

It must have been a similar train of thought that led the translator of this version of the Pauline Epistles to set out upon his work.

Both Trevisa and the reviser of the Wycliffite Bible discuss literal as against idiomatic translation. Before beginning his translation of the Polychronicon the former wrote a letter² to his patron, Lord Thomas of Barkley, which may be considered as the preface to the work, since it states the principles of translation which Trevisa intended to follow. He writes—

“ I[n] some place I shall set word for word, and actiffe for actiffe, and passife for passife, arowe righ[t] as it stondeth without changinge the order of words, and set actife for passife,³ and ayenward; And in some places I must set a reson for a word and tell what it meaneth; But for all such changing, the meaning shall stand and not be changed; but some words and names of Cuntries, of londs, of Cities . . . must be set and stand for himself in her owne kinde; as Asia, Europia, Africa, . . . and many such words and names.”

The principles of translation laid down by the Wycliffite reviser were, as is well known, similar to those of Trevisa. He writes—⁴

“ First it is to knowe that the best translating is out of Latyn into English, to translate aftir the sentence and not oneli aftir the wordis, so that the sentence be as opin, either openere, in English as in Latyn, and go not fer fro the lettre; and if the lettre mai not be suid in the translating, let the sentence euere be hool and open, for the wordis owen to serue to the entent and sentence, and ellis the wordis ben superflu either false.”

⁴ Forshall and Madden, General Prologue, Cap. XV. Vol. i. p. 56 f.

Then follows detailed grammatical advice—

“ In translating into English, manie resolucions moun make the sentence open, as an ablative case absolute may be resolved into these thre wordis, with couenable verbe, the while, for, if, as gramariens seyn; . . . and sumtyme it wolde acorde wel with the sentence to be resolved into whanne, either into aftirward . . . ; and sumtyme it mai wel be resolved into a verbe of the same tens, as others ben in the same resoun, and into this word et, that is, and, in English . . . Also a participle of a present tens, either preterit, of actif vois, either passif, mai be resolved into a verbe of the same tens and a coniuncional copulatif . . . and this wole, in manie placis, make the sentence open, where to Englisshe it aftir the word, wolde be derk and douteful. Also a relativ, which mai be resolved into his antecedent with a coniuncional copulatif . . . Also whanne oo word is oonis set in a reesoun, it mai be set forth as ofte as it is undurstonden, either as ofte as reesoun and nede axen; and this word autem, either uero, mai stonde for forsythe, either for but, and thus I vse comounli; and sumtyme it mai stonde for and, as elde gramariens seyn. Also whanne riȝtful construccioun is lettid bi relacion, I resolute it openli. . . . At the bigynnyng I purposide, with Goddis helpe, to make the sentence as trewe and open in English as it is in Latyn, either more trewe and more open than it is in Latyn . . . And where I haue translatid as opinli or opinliere in English as in Latyn, late wise men deme, that knownen wel bothe langagis, and knownen wel the sentence of holi scripture. And wher I have do thus, or may, ne doute, thei that kunne wel the sentence of holi writ and English togidere, and wolen trauaile, with Goddis grace theraboute, moun make the bible as trewe and as opin, ȝea, and opinliere in English than it is in Latyn. . . . But in translating of wordis equiuok, that is, that hath mani significacions undur oo lettre, mai liȝtli be pereil, for Austyn seith in the ij. book of Cristene Teching, that if equiuok wordis be not translatid into the sense, either vndurstonding, of the autour it is error. . . . Therfore a translatour hath greet nede to studie wel the sentence, both bifore and aftir, and loke that suche equiuok wordis acorde with the sentence, and he hath nede to lyue a clene lif, and be deuout in preiers, and haue not his wit occupied about worldli thingis, that the Holi Spiryt, autour of wisdom and kunning, and truthe, dresse him in his werk, and suffre him not for to erre. Also this word ex signifieth sumtyme of, and sumtyme it signifieth bi, as Jerome seith; and this word enim signifieth comynli forsythe, and, as Jerome seith, it signifieth cause thus, forwhi; and this word secundum is taken for aftir, as manie men seyn, and comynli, but it signifieth wel bi, either up, . . . Manie such aduerbis, coniunctions, and preposicions ben set ofte oon for another, and at fre chois of autouris sumtyme; and now tho shulen be taken as it accordith best to the sentence. Bi this maner, with good luyng and greet trauel, men moun come to trewe and cleer translating, and trewe vndurstonding of holi writ, seme it neuere so hard at the bigynnyng.”

Trevisa's principles allowed of more elasticity than those of the Wycliffite reviser. In Trevisa's educational works it was sufficient to give an assurance that the meaning should "stand and not be changed," and his aim was not to be exact but interesting, vivid, and amusing. Accordingly he gives the preference to colloquialism over exactitude, and allows himself to abridge or to expand his original at will. It is to be regretted that the Biblical translation with which Trevisa has been credited by tradition is not extant; there his free and lively methods and the ultra-literal fashion that often spoilt fourteenth-century Biblical translations might have happily tempered each other. For the translation of the Bible, although perhaps it belongs to the general fashion of the fourteenth century, stands on a separate footing. Here alone the translator felt the obligations of accuracy and scholarship. A comparison of the various Biblical translations of the fourteenth century illustrates especially the efforts made to reconcile the two ideals of preserving the exact significance and of giving it in intelligible English. There are those in which nothing, or hardly anything, more than literal construing is attempted; such is Richard Rolle's Psalter,¹ conjecturally dated in 1326/7². This consists of the Latin text, followed by a translation, and then by a commentary, and thus corresponds to the commentaries on the Gospels mentioned in Section VI. p. liii. The translation is mere construing of the Latin; it would not be possible to be more literal. The Latin order of words is rigidly followed with entire disregard of the English usage, and Latin cases and prepositions are not adapted.

Thus he renders in Psalm I.—

Verse 1 : Beatus uir qui non abiit in consilio impiorum : et in via peccatorum non stetit, et in cathedra pestilencie non sedit, by "Blisful man the whilk oway ȝed noght in the counsaile of wicked; and in the way of synful stode noght, and in the chaiere of pestilens he noght sate."

Verse 2 : Sed in lege domini voluptas eius : et in lege eius meditabitur die ac nocte : "Bot in laghe of lord the will of him : and in his laghe he sall thynke day and nyght."

The commentary that follows each verse is also mainly a translation, and is only slightly less literal than the text itself.

The early Wycliffite Version of 1382 is an attempt at a more natural translation than this, but it is hardly more successful. Here the writer is additionally hampered by his lack of command of the Latin, but what is specially noticeable is his anxious solicitude lest he should mislead. He feels that his work will be read chiefly by those who have no opportunity of reference to the Latin original, so that the entire responsibility lies on him.

This is evident in his nervous use of numerous double renderings, which are much more frequent in this early text than in the revision, more frequent, even, than in this present version of the Pauline Epistles, where the presence of the Latin text provided a safeguard.

For instance, the E.V. reads, in I. Cor. i. 8, crime or greet synne; in ver. 10, scismes or dyysiouns, dissencions or discordis; in ver. 11, signyfied or toolde; in ver. 17, to euangelyse or preche the gospel; in ver. 25, syk thing or freel; and so on.

Better work is found in the translation of parts of the New Testament published by Miss Paues (E.B.V.) The quality of the E.B.V. varies considerably in different parts of it, since it is by two translators. The second part¹ is inferior to the first. As in the present text, there are many glosses and alternative renderings, and many mistranslations due either to ignorance or to a corrupt Latin text from which the translation may have been made. Yet in spite of these Miss Paues considers this second part to be superior to the Earlier Wycliffite Version in clearness of expression, although in accuracy and polish it is inferior to the Later.²

The first part³ of this translation was made by a good Latin

scholar, who could also write clear and idiomatic English; his work is free from inaccuracies to a great extent, and is put by Miss Paues on a level with the Later Wycliffite Version.¹

Finally, the Later Wycliffite revision is the work of a reviser who followed principles of translation which remain valid even when considered in the light of modern scholarship. His rules go, for the most part, against rather than in favour of an unswerving grammatical exactitude (though, of course, he does not admit of the slightest change of the meaning of the original) thus indicating in what direction had lain the fault of previous Biblical renderings.

The version in the MS. under consideration comes nearest to the Early Wycliffite translation. Often in the examples of syntax cited in Section V the E.V. shares the awkward and obscure construction of this version, but in order of words the E.V. is sometimes the more natural of the two; for instance—

Rom. i. 9: MS. Testis enim michi est deus . . . for witnesse to me is god. E.V. forsoth god is a witnesse to me. Rom. i. 21: MS. obscuratum est insipiens cor eorum . . . þe herte of þem vnwise is maad derk. E.V. the unwise herte of them is derkid (where the adj. unwise is rightly made to qualify herte). Eph. iv. i: MS. Obsecro itaque uos ego uinctus in domino ut digne ambuletis uocacione qua uocati estis . . . þerfore I beseche þou breþere I bounden in oure lord þat ȝee worþily go þurgh þe calling þat ȝee ar callyd. E.V. and so I bounden in the lord byseche that ȝe walke worthily in the clepinge in which ȝe ben clepid. Eph. iv. 6: qui super omnes et per omnia et in omnibus uobis . . . þe whiche ouer alle and þurgh alle þyng and in alle vs. E.V. The which is above alle men and by alle thingis and in vs alle.

These improvements, however, are not very frequent, and the E.V. as a whole cannot be ranked much higher than the version of MS. Parker 32.

This version does not compare favourably with any other Biblical translation made in the fourteenth century, except with Rolle's Psalter. As has been said, it is on the whole inferior to the Wycliffite E.V., and though the inferior part of the E.B.V. is on about the same level of inaccuracy, in other respects it is superior. The glosses in the E.B.V., though numerous, are of a very simple explanatory kind as a rule, and are seldom so extensive as those which sometimes occur in the Parker MS. 32. The text is much more readable and intelligible, and more independent of the Latin original, perhaps because the latter was not written alongside it. A fortiori, the first and better part of the E.B.V. is of much greater merit than the present translation. The version of the Parker MS. 32 is extremely literal and unpolished, and often inaccurate; in many places it would even have been incomprehensible to an English-speaking person unable to compare it with the Latin original. Its obscurity is due, to a certain extent, to its vocabulary, which contains a large number of words adapted from the Latin¹ that were not in common use at the time. These are sometimes explained by a gloss, but not always, and the very explanation constitutes an interruption, and distracts the reader's attention from the meaning of the passage as a whole. Examples of such unfamiliar words are: vnordeyne, exacerbacyoun, molles, vndermynstracion, susurrus, opitulacyoun, coaccyoun.

The obscurity also lies largely in the syntax, which is often very much strained in conformity with the Latin original. The translator recognised no such principles as those laid down by the reviser of the Wycliffite Version in his Prologue for the guidance of other translators of the Bible.² He does not, as a rule, resolve Latin ablative absolutes and participles into subordinate clauses with a finite verb, nor does he often change a relative pronoun into its antecedent, repeated and preceded by a copulative conjunction. For instance—

Rom. i. 27: MS. relichto naturali usu . . . þe kyndely use forsaken.
 L.V. also the men forsoken the kyndli uss. I. Cor. i. 7: MS. uobis . . . expectantibus reuelacionem . . . to ȝou . . . abydarde þe reuelacyoun.
 L.V. to ȝou . . . that abiden the schewyng. I. Cor. i. 18: MS. pereuntibus . . . to þe perschende. L.V. to hem that perischen. Phil. iii. 13: MS. autem quidem que retro sunt obliuiscens ad ea uero que priora sunt extendens me ipsum. . . . but þoo thyngys þat ar behynde I forgetande and spredande me forsoþe to þoo thyngeþ þat ar fyrst. L.V. y forȝete tho thingis that ben bilihndis, and stretche forth my silf to tho thingis that ben bifore. II. Thess. ii. 4 : MS. ita ut in templo sedeat ostendens se tamquam sit deus : . . . so þat he sytte in þe temple of god schewande hym as þat he be god. L.V. so that he sitte in the temple of god, and schewe hym silf as if he were god. I. Tim. i. 6 : MS. a quibus quidam aberrantes conuersi sunt . . . fro þe whiche somme fro errande þei ben turnyd. L.V. fro whiche thingis sum men han errid and ben turned. I. Tim. i. 12 : MS. quia fidelem me existimauit ponens in ministerio . . . for he settande me in mynsterye trowide me trewe. L.V. for he gesside me feithful and putte me in mynstrie.

His fondness for relatives is illustrated by—

Rom. i. 3, 4 : MS. de filio suo qui factus est ei ex semine dauid secundum carnem qui predestinatus est filius dei . . . his sone þe whiche is maad to hym of þe seed of dauid after þe flasch þe whiche is before ordeynyd goddis sone. L.V. his sone which is maad to hym of the seed of Dauid bi the flesch, and he was bifor ordeyned the sone of God.

Here the L.V., because of the confusion of its pronouns, is not much better than the MS. rendering.

Sometimes the translator retains a subordinate clause with a conjunction and a finite verb, where the Wycliffite reviser has perceived the advantage of an infinitive, e.g.—

I. Cor. i. 27 : MS. ut confundat forcia . . . þat he confounde stronge thynges. L.V. to confounde the stronge thingis.

The order of words is often unnatural, and the phrases are stiff because the translator has not been bold enough to depart from the Latin order; in this respect the Wycliffite reviser is often his superior. For instance—

Rom. i. 15 : MS. promptum est . . . ewangelisare . . . it is redy and to ȝou . . . for to preche þe ewangelye. L.V. is redi to preche the gospel also to ȝou. I. Cor. i. 29 : MS. in conspectu eius . . . in þe siȝte of hym. L.V. in his siȝt. Phil. iii. 11 : MS. configuratus morti eius . . . I configured to þe deaþ of hym. L.V. and be maad lijk to his deeth. Phil. iii. 19 : MS. quorum finis interitus . . . þe eende of whom þe death. L.V. whos ende is deth. Phil. iii. 20 : MS. nosta autem conuersacio . . . oure forsoþe conuersacion. L.V. but oure lyuyng. I. Tim. i. 12 : MS. gracias ago ei . . . thankyngh I do to hym. L.V. I do thankingis to him. Heb. viii. 3 : MS. vnde necesse est et hunc habere aliquid . . . wherfore it is nede and hym to haue sumwhat. L.V. wherfore it is nede that also this bischop haue sum thing.

Examples of the inaccuracy of the translator, and of his misleading, if not actually wrong, renderings have already been given in Section V.

Thus this translation cannot take a high place among works of a similar character in the fourteenth century, and in fact can only be placed above Rolle's Psalter and the Ayenbite of Invit. It is inferior to all the other New Testament and Bible translations, even to the Earlier Wycliffite Version and the inferior part of the E.B.V. But its form makes it clear that, like Rolle's Psalter, it was never intended to be read as an independent translation; and it shares equally with all the other New Testament translations of the time the interest of showing how the fourteenth-century mind wrestled with the difficulties of Pauline thought, clutching at the thread of the logical argument, as is shown, for instance, in the explanatory repetitions and references in Rom. v. 16, and striving to express the full thought, sometimes even finding more than is given (perhaps misled by some commentator) as in I. Cor. xv. 32, Rom. xiv. 7, 8, and 22. But for the most part the translator conscientiously attempts to make the text clear by the narrow light of a very simple morality and dogma (as in Rom. x. 6 and 7), although hampered by an indifferent knowledge of Latin and the lack of any real mastery over his own language.

SECTION VIII. *Language.*¹

I. Vowels of stressed syllables.

O.E. Short Vowels.

§ 1. O.E. a remains as [a] in closed syllables; in open syllables it is lengthened to [ā]— crabbe, II. Tim. ii. 17; forsaken (p.p.), Rom. i. 27; with absorption of following unaccented vowel after loss of intervening consonant; maade (p.p.), Rom. i. 22.

Before nasals O.E. a usually remains, but is lengthened to [ā] in open syllables, and to [ō] before lengthening consonant groups—thankid (p.p.), Rom. i. 21; name, Rom. i. 5; foond (3. sg. pret.), II. Tim. i. 17; with earlier shortening: standen (1. pl. pres.), Rom. v. 2.

Throughout fro (O. Scand. frá) occurs for the native form fram.

Beside forms in a occur others in e from O.E. bye-forms in æ, in—whan, Rom. iii. 4 (5 times); þan, Rom. v. 15 (17 times); þanne, Rom. viii. 10 (8 times); when, Rom. iv. 19 (62 times); þen, Rom. vii. 13 (28 times); whenne, I. Cor. xvi. 2 (once); þenne, Rom. xi. 6 (13 times).

§ 2. O.E. æ (Merc. Kent. e) appears as a— hadde, Rom. i. 21; fadyr, Rom. iii. 25. O.E. tīgēdere, tīgedere, always appears with -i-, -y- forms, on account of the following dental (cp. Morsb. § 109) or the preceding palatal (cp. Kal. § 208, Anm. 9.): togidere, Rom. i. 12; togydere, Rom. iii. 12. O.E. gaederian, gadrian, gives forms with -a- and -e- (each 4 times): e. g. gederyd (p.p.) I. Cor. v. 4; gaderyd (p.p.), I. Cor. vii. 29.

§ 3. O.E. e is written e, whether retained as a short vowel or lengthened in open syllables to [ē]; when lengthened before lengthening consonant-groups (sound-value [ē]) or in monosyllables, it is written e or ee— helpere, Rom. xvi. 9; thenke (1. sg. pres.), II. Cor. i. 17; ete (inf.), Rom. xiv. 2; zeelde (inf.), Rom. ii. 6; weel, Rom. xi. 19.

§ 4. O.E. i usually remains, written i, y, but is lengthened before lengthening consonant-groups—wille (sb.), Rom. ix. 19; drynke (inf.), Rom. xiv. 21; fynde (1. sg. pres.), Rom. vii. 18.

O.E. i also appears sporadically as ɛ in þedyr, Rom. xv. 24.

§ 5. O.E. o remains unless lengthened in open syllables or before lengthening consonant-groups—folc, Rom. i. 5; brokyn (p.p.), Rom. xi. 17; woord, Rom. ix. 28; ȝooldyn (p.p.), II. Cor. i. 11.

O.E. o appears as u in durste (3. sg. pret.), Rom. v. 7, probably by analogy with other parts of the verb, e. g. inf. durn, Phil. i. 14.

§ 6. O.E. u remains, written v- initially, u or o medially, unless lengthened before lengthening consonant-groups, when it is written ou, value [ū]— vnderberande, Col. iii. 13; tunge, Rom. xiv. 11; sone, Rom. i. 3; ground, Rom. xv. 20; doumbe, I. Cor. xii. 2.

§ 7. O.E. y (Kent. e) appears as y, i, representing unrounded [i], unless lengthened to [ī], written y, before lengthening consonant-groups—synne (sb.). Rom. i. 28; fulfld (p.p.), Rom. i. 29; mynde, Rom. xv. 15.

O.E. y appears as e (26 times), beside i or y (25 times) in forms of the verb O.E. wyrcan, probably by analogy with the sb. Angl. werc., e. g. werke (1. sg. pres.), Rom. vii. 20; wyrke (1. sg. pres.), Rom. vii. 15.

O.E. yfel appears with e forms throughout, e. g. euyl, Rom. xiii. 3 (see Morsb. § 130).

The form lefte (2. pl. imp.), Heb. xii. 12, is from O.E. inf. leftan* (Orm. leftenn) beside lyftan (see Morsb. § 129, Anm. 5).

O.E. y appears as u by analogy in hungres (3. sg. pres., cp. sb. O.E. hungor), Rom. xii. 20, and in lustys (sb. pl., from an O.E. byeform lust without umlaut), II. Tim. iii. 4 (cp. Morsb. § 129, Anm. 4. 2).

The forms suche (4 times, e. g. Rom. i. 32); suyche (17 times, e. g. Rom. ii. 2), suych (13 times, e. g. Philem. 9), O.E. swilc, swylc, may be due to the influence of the preceding w (cp. Urk. p. 64). or of the following palatal (cp. Kal. § 226 b). The forms swych (once), Heb. viii. 1, swyche (once), Heb. vii. 26, and sich (once), I. Cor. v. 1, also occur: which does not occur with -u- in this text.

The form worte, Rom. xiv. 2, (O.E. wyrt) is probably from a bye-form without umlaut (cp. Morsb. § 129, Anm. 3).

O.E. Long Vowels.

§ 8. O.E. ā usually appears as o. oo. value [ō]— holy, Rom. i. 2; aroos, Rom. xiv. 9. In 5 cases a following -i- or -y- indicates the length of the -o-, e. g. rois (3. sg. pret.), Rom. viii. 34; aboyd (3. sg. pret.), Heb. xi. 10. The Northern -a- occurs 3 times; takyns, haly, Rom. xv. 19; ham, I. Cor. xiv. 35. In Scand. loanwords the corresponding Scand. diphthong ei remains as ay, ey, e. g. plur. gayte, gayt, Heb. ix. 12, 13; geyte, Heb. x. 4, cp. O. Scand. geit.

§ 9. Angl. W.S. ā, Kent. ē (Gmc. ai + i, j) appears as e, ee, value [ē]— hele, Rom. i. 16; leest (= least), once, I. Cor. xv. 9.

When shortened this sound appears as a and e— a-forms: dalt (p.p.), twice, e.g. I. Cor. xiii. 3; sprad (p.p.), twice, e.g. Rom. x. 21; lad (p.p.), 5 times, e.g. II. Cor. i. 16; (3. sg. pret.), once, Col. ii. 15; ladde (3. sg. pret.), once, Heb. vii. 19; laste (= last), and compounds, throughout, e.g. Rom. i. 10; xvi. 25; lasse, once, Rom. ix. 12; last (= lest), twice, e.g. Rom. xi. 21; clansyng, once, Heb. ix. 13; any, Rom. i. 10 and throughout except 6 times ony, e.g. Rom. v. 7.

e-forms: led (p.p.), 6 times, e.g. Rom. ii. 4; ledde (p.p.), once, Rom. xv. 24; (3. sg. pret.), twice, e.g. Eph. iv. 8; lesse, 16 times, e.g. I. Cor. iii. 15; lest (= lest), 30 times, e.g. Rom. xv. 20; leste (= least), twice, e.g. I. Cor. iv. 6; leste (= least), once, Eph. iii. 8; clenze (inf.), Heb. ix. 14, and throughout.

§ 10. W.S. āe. non-W.S. ē. (Gmc. ā) appears as e, ee, probably with value [ē], from non-W.S. ē— drede (inf.), Rom. xi. 20; seed, Rom. iv. 13.

When shortened this sound usually appears as e, but twice as a— dreddē (pret. pl.), Heb. xi. 23; radē (p.p.), twice, e.g. II. Cor. iii. 15.

§ 11. O.E. ē remains [ē], written e, ee— mede, Rom. i. 27; wee, Rom. v. 1.

§ 12. O.E. i remains [i], written i, y— rise (inf.), Rom. xiii. 11; lyf, Rom. ii. 7.

When shortened it appears as i, y, value [i]— wisdam, Rom. viii. 7; wymmen, Rom. i. 26; after w- it appears as o, value [u°], in womman, Rom. vii. 2.

§ 13. O.E. ō remains [ō], written o. oo— dom, Rom. ii. 3; soōpnes, II. Thess. ii. 12. In 13 cases -i- or -y- is used to indicate the length of the preceding vowel, e.g. oīper, II. Thess. ii. 15, oyþer, I. Cor. xiv. 6. (O.E. ōhwaēþer).

§ 14. O.E. ū remains [ū], written ou, ow— mouþ, Rom. iii. 14; hows, I. Cor. i. 16.

When shortened it appears as u-, -u-, -o-, value [u]— vpon, Rom. i. 18; huswyfes, I. Tim. v. 14; abouen, Rom. xiii. 1.

§ 15. O.E. ȳ is unrounded to [i], written y, i— fyre, Rom. xii. 20; fīr, II. Thess. i. 8. This sound when shortened before two or more consonants is seen in lytlyng, Rom. xi. 12; filthe, Rom. i. 27.

*O.E. Short Diphthongs.§ 16. Breaking.

O.E. ea (Angl. ea, a), from a before r, l, + consonant, appears as a, except before the lengthening consonant-group ld, where it gives [q̄]— hardnesse, Rom. ii. 5; halp (3. sg. pret.), Rom. vi. 14; told (p.p.), Rom. iv. 5; hoolde (2. pl. imp.), II. Thess. ii. 15.

O.E. ea (Angl. æ), from a before h and h + consonant, appears as a before x (= hs): (see also under Consonant Influence)— waxe (2. pl. pres.), Rom. vi. 21.

O.E. eo before r, l, + consonant, appears as e, ee, value [ɛ], before lengthening consonants [ə̄], also as o, beside e, when w immediately precedes—herte, Rom. i. 21; eerþe, Heb. vi. 7; swerd, Rom. xiii. 4; worschipe, Rom. ii. 10.

There are no examples of the change of M.E. e (O.E. eo) to a before r + consonant in native words, but a is occasionally found in this position in French loanwords—parfite, Eph. iv. 13, beside perfyte, Rom. xii. 2.

O.E. eo, from earlier e before h and h + consonant, became i, y, by the so-called palatal umlaut in the O.E. period; this vowel remains (see also under Consonant Influence), e. g.— sixty, I. Tim. v. 9; riztwisnesse, Rom. i. 17.

The i-umlaut of O.E. breaking diphthongs appears as e, ee— ȝerde, I. Cor. iv. 21; schepperde, Heb. xiii. 20.

§ 17. u-, o- umlaut.

O.E. eo, the u/o umlaut of e, appears as e— heuen, Rom. iv. 18; sefyn, Rom. xi. 4. There are no certain examples representing the u/o umlaut of i.

§ 18. Palatal Diphthongisation.

After an initial palatal consonant—

Angl. æ, e (W.S. ea) appears as a— schal (sg.), Rom. ii. 6; ȝaf (3. sg. pret.), Gal. iii. 18.

Angl. e (W.S. ie) appears as e, or when lengthened as ee— forgete (inf.), Heb. xiii. 2; zeelde (inf.), Rom. ii. 6.

The verb to give appears with root-vowel i throughout its present-stem forms, probably influenced by the East Scand. verb giva (cp. Björkman: Scand. Loanwords in M.E., pp. 155–6).

O.E. o (eo) remains—zok, II. Cor. vi. 14.

O.E. Long Diphthongs.

§ 19. O.E. ēa appears as e, ee, ea, value [ē]— deth, Rom. i. 32; zeerys, Rom. xv. 23; deade, Rom. i. 4.

Shortening of the vowel is indicated by the double consonant in—gretter (compte.), Heb. vi. 13.

§ 20. O.E. ēō appears as e, ee, value [ē]— fend, I. Tim. iii. 7; seeke (adj.), Rom. xv. 7.

When shortened this sound gives e, i, y— derrest, I. Cor. x. 14; sik, I. Cor. viii. 7; syknesse, II. Cor. xii. 9.

§ 21. The i-umlaut of O.E. ēa, ēō (Angl. Kent. ē, ēō, īō) appears as e, ee, value [ē] from the Anglian forms—heren (inf.), Rom. x. 14; newe, Gal. vi. 15; beleeuyn (3. pl. pres.), Rom. iii. 22.

Consonant Influence.

Vowel + Palatal Spirant.

§ 22. O.E. æ + ȝ gives ay, ey— day, Rom. ii. 5; seyde (3. sg. pret.), Rom. ix. 29; the verb to say has all forms in -ey-, except once inf. sayn, Rom. iii. 5. Exceptional is agynus, Col. i. 29.

§ 23. O.E. e + ȝ gives ey, value [ei]— wey, I. Thess. iii. 11.

This sound before ht gives i— behizte (3. sg. pret.), Rom. iv. 21; behizt (p.p.), Rom. i. 2, constructed from O.E. reduplicating preterite -heht.

§ 24. O.E. $\bar{i} + \bar{\zeta}$, $\check{y} + \bar{\zeta}$ appear as y, value [\bar{i}]— lyse (3. sg. pres.), Rom. vii. 18; hyed (p.p.), I. Thess. ii. 17; bye (inf.), Tit. ii. 14, an analogical form; steye (inf.), Rom. x. 6, has -ey- either by Scand. influence (cp. Björkman, Scand. Loanwords in M.E., p. 62), or by transference into the 2nd ablaut class.

§ 25. O.E. i (earlier ea, eo) also appears as i, y, before ht— fightys (sb. pl.), II. Cor. vii. 5; myȝty, Rom. iv. 21.

§ 26. O.E. ā (Angl. ē) + $\bar{\zeta}$ gives ey, value [$\bar{e}\bar{i}$]— cleȝ, Rom. ix. 21. O.E. æȝhwilc, ælc, appears usually as eche, e.g. Rom. i. 17; yche (once), I. Cor. xv. 39; vche (once), Rom. xii. 3, is the W. Midl. form, also found in Sthn., from Merc. ylc (V. Ps.), or perhaps from O.E. gehwylc (cp. N.E.D. s. v. each); for ylke, ilke, see under III. Consonants, § 50.

§ 27. O.E. ēa (late W.S. Angl. ē) + h, $\bar{\zeta}$, gives [$\bar{e}\bar{i}$]. written variously, e.g.—

heghe, Rom. i. 30; eyghe, I. Cor. II. 9; eȝen, Eph. i. 18; neegh, Heb. viii. 13, etc.

The verb to die (cp. O. Icel. inf. deyjā, Björkman, Scand. Loanwords in M.E., p. 66), usually has forms with -y-, value [\bar{i}], by the influence of the following palatal (cp. Urk. pp. 70 1), but twice with -ey-, value [\bar{ai}], e.g. dye (inf.), Rom. v. 7; deyande (pres. part.), Heb. xi. 20; deyȝyng, Heb. vii. 28.

§ 28. Angl. ē (W.S. Kent. ēō, ēō) + h, ht, $\bar{\zeta}$, gives -y-, -iȝ-— liȝt (adj.), Rom. vi. 19; lye (1. sg. pres.), Rom. ix. 1; thyes, Eph. vi. 14; the form thees (pl.), Heb. vii. 10, is from the O.E. oblique cases of the sb. þeȝh, where -h- (-ȝ-) was lost.

§ 29. Kent. Angl. ē, ēō, ēō. (W.S. iē, ȳ). the i-umlants of ēā, ēō, + $\bar{\zeta}$, h, appear as egh, ey— hey (sb.), I. Cor. iii. 12; heghte (sb.), Rom. viii. 39.

Vowel or Diphthong + Guttural Spirant or w.

§ 30. O.E. a + $\bar{\zeta}$ gives aw, value [au], or agh— sawe (sb.), Tit. iii. 1; lawe, Rom. ii. 12; laȝh, Rom. vii. 1 (of Scand. origin).

§ 31. O.E. ā + w, ȝ gives [ḡu], written ow, ou, and ough, ough, etc.—

knowe (p. p.), Rom. i. 21; soule, Rom. ii. 9; dowgh, Rom. xi. 16; dough, I. Cor. v. 7; nouȝt, I. Cor. vi. 9. Exceptional is awght, I. Cor. xii. 26, possibly shortened; shortening is certainly seen in nat, II. Tim. iv. 8.

§ 32. O.E. ā + ht gives awȝ, agh— tauȝt (p.p.), I. Cor. ii. 13; taght (p.p.), Rom. xvi. 17 (with the vowel probably shortened in the O.E. period).

§ 33. O.E. ea (ae) + h, ht appears as au, aw, aȝ, auȝ, etc.—

saugh (3. sg. pret.), I. Cor. ii. 9; slaȝte (sb.), Heb. vii. 1; slawȝte, Heb. xi. 37.

§ 34. O.E. ēā + w gives ew, value [ēu]— schewe (inf.), Rom. ix. 17.

§ 35. O.E. ēō + w appears as ew, value [ēu], and ow, ou, value [ḡu]— trewē, Rom. iii. 10; trowē (inf.), Rom. x. 7; foure, Gal. iii. 17.

O.E. ēow, ēowre, give ȝou, ȝow, ȝourē, ȝowre, throughout.

§ 36. O.E. ᷮ + ȝ, h, ht, gives oȝ, ogh, ough, ouȝh, etc.—

doȝter, Heb. xi. 24; wroȝte (3. sg. pret.), Gal. ii. 8; wrouȝt (p.p.), Rom. vii. 8; thouȝtys (pl. sb.); Rom. xiv. 1; soughte (3. sg. pret.), Rom. ix. 32.

The loanword pof (Rom. iii. 3, and throughout), O. W. Scand. *þōh, shows lip-modification of the spirant.

§ 37. O.E. ō + ȝ appears as ow(ȝ), value [qu, ȝw]— slowȝ (3. sg. pret.), Heb. xi. 24; slowyn (3. pl. pret.), I. Thess. ii. 15.

§ 38. O.E. ū + ȝ gives ou, ow, value [ū]— foulis, Rom. i. 23; bowe (2. sg. imper.), Rom. xi. 10.

II. Vowels of Suffixes, Prefixes, Inflexional Syllables and Words without Sentence-Stress.

§ 39. Suffixes.

O.E. -dōm is weakened to -dam— wisdam, Rom. ii. 20; kyngdam, Rom. xiv. 17.

O.E. *-hāed(u), -hād give -hed(e), -hod(e), (4 times) respectively—broþerhed, Heb. xiii. 1; maydenhod, II. Cor. xi. 2; knyghthode is twice used as a verb, I. Cor. ix. 7 (3. sg. pret.), and I. Tim. i. 18 (2. sg. pres. subj.).

O.E. -lāc gives -loc in—wedloc, Heb. xiii. 4.

O.E. -āere, -ere, appear as -er, -ere, -ar (22 times)— techer, Rom. ii. 20; brekere, Rom. ii. 25; sekar, I. Cor. i. 20.

O.E. -en, adj. suffix, remains as -ene, -yn, with no trace of i-umlaut of the root-vowel—goldene, treene, sylueryn, II. Tim. ii. 20.

Also noteworthy are—neghebore, Rom. xiii. 8; negheboures (gen. sg.), Rom. xiii. 9; husband, Rom. vii. 3; husbonde, Rom. vii. 2; bisschopryche, I. Tim. iii. 1; lyflobe, II. Cor. vi. 4; knowleche (inf.), Rom. xv. 9.

§ 40. Prefixes.

O.E. on- is weakened to a-, ō- — awey, Rom. iv. 14; a none, Gal. i. 16; o twynne, Gal. v. 15.

O.E. ȝe- is not retained.

O.E. be- remains as be-, bi-, by-, bee- — beseche, Rom. xv. 30; bifore, Rom. i. 2; byfor, Rom. ii. 11; beetooke, Heb. xi. 14.

Also noteworthy are—weelplesande, Rom. xii. 2; umbreydande, umbreydes, Rom. xv. 3 (Scand. um-, umb-, cp. Björkman, Scand. Loanwords in M.E., p. 224).

§ 41. Inflexional Syllables.

O.E. e appears in unaccented syllables i, y, less frequently e (proportion of about 3 to 2), also u (3 times, in scribes' contractions 157 times), e.g.— techist, Rom. ii. 21; aftyrs, Rom. i. 4; lifes (3. sg. pres.), Rom. i. 17; serud (p.p.), I. Tim. iv. 2.

O.E. o in unaccented position appears as i, y, e— thankid, (p.p.), Rom. i. 21; folwyd (p.p.), Rom. ix. 25; luffede (1. sg. pret.), Rom. ix. 13.

§ 42. Words without Sentence-Stress.

A few forms weakened through lack of stress are found, e. g.— be, Rom. ii. 27; fer, Eph. ii. 13, 17; atte, I. Thess. iii. 1, cp. att þe, Heb. xi. 12; O.E. (e)alswī, besides also, e. g. Rom. i. 27, gives frequently as, e. g. Rom. i. 17, and os (9 times), e. g. Eph. iv. 4.

III. Consonants.

§ 43. The consonantal system of this text is mainly that of the Midland dialect in the fourteenth century; only the deviations from Chaucer's language are here noticed (cp. t. Br., §§ 99–126).

O.E. f is often retained medially as the symbol of the voiced spirant before vowels, though the spelling -u- is also frequently found—gifen (p.p.), Rom. vi. 23; euylle, Rom. v. 6.

O.E. f is written ff 8 times, e. g.— luffede (1. sg. pret.), Rom. ix. 13.

§ 44. O.E. hw usually appears as wh, but 6 times as w, e. g.— woise, Rom. xiv. 8; wilk. Rom. v. 5. Aphæresis of w is seen twice in noldist, Heb. x. 5, 8, as frequently in Chaucer.

§ 45. O.E. d is lost in—chilhede, II. Tim. iii. 15.

Inorganic p is introduced into alþer in compounds, e. g.— alþerbest, Heb. xiii. 9.

p, th, occur for t in the French loanword—comforth, comforþ (sb.), II. Cor. i. 3, 6.

§ 46. O.E. l is lost in—word (once), I. Cor. ii. 6; wordly, I. Cor. vi. 4 (3 times); as (throughout), Rom. xi. 13; os (9 times), I. Cor. x. 15.

§ 47. O.E. n is lost in—edderys, Rom. i. 23.

and from O.E. on- in compounds.

§ 48. O.E. s is written ss in—cheess (3 sg. pret.), twice, I. Cor. i. 27, and in wasse (3 sg. pret.), I. Cor. xv. 48.

§ 49. O.E. palatal ȝ is retained, written ȝ, ȝh— ȝit, Rom. v. 6; ȝhe, Eph. v. 12. Forms of the verb to give have initial ȝ-, with 2 exceptions, ȝaf (3. sg. pret.), Gal. iii. 18; ȝife (p.p.), Rom. vi. 19. The verbs to forgive, to get, and to forget, always give forms with initial g- for the root-syllable.

O.E. guttural ȝ remains as gh, ȝ, ȝh; for examples see supra, §§ 30, 31, and 36.

§ 50. O.E. palatal c is represented by ch, with a few exceptions; there are—benk (twice), e. g. Heb. i. 13, x. 13; syker (once), Rom. iv. 16; kyrke, Rom. xv. 15, and throughout; mykyl (12 times), e. g. Rom. iv. 17, beside myche (44 times), e. g. Rom. iii. 2; all forms of O.E. pencan and secan have -k- (see Urk., p. 94, and Björkman, Scand. Loanwords in M.E., p. 144, note), but the compound O.E. besēcan gives -ch- forms with 3 exceptions, besēkande, II. Cor. viii. 4; besēkyngē, Rom. i. 10; besēkyng, Eph. vi. 18. Forms of such always have ch (see supra, § 7), but forms of which have 3 ch- forms to 1 k- form; ylke occurs 38 times, e. g. Rom. iv. 16, ylk(e)one 5 times, e. g. I. Cor. iii. 5, and ilke once, Rom. xiii. 1, but eche is usual (76 times), see supra, § 26.

O.E. sc is represented by sch; exceptions—askis (sb. pl.), Heb. ix. 13, and forms of the verb to ask, e. g. askyde (3. pret. pl.), Rom. x. 20.

Initial h is often lost in words of foreign origin, and inorganic h is often prefixed, e. g.— eyr, Heb. i. 2; habounde, Rom. iii. 7.

§ 51. Loss of medial consonants and subsequent contraction— tan, tane (p. p.), I. Cor. iv. 7; whirlewyn (cp. O. Icel. hvirfilvindr), Heb. xii. 18.

IV. Flexion.

§ 52. Nouns.

The strong nom. acc. plural ending -as of the masc. a- stems prevails for all declensions, in the forms -es, -is, -ys, -s; there are, however, a few remnants of O.E. plural formations, such as those of neuter a- stems, os/es stems, r- stems, and the weak declension, e. g.— zeer, Rom. iv. 19; caluere (gen. pl.), Heb. ix. 12, 19; breþer, Rom. vii. 1; oxen, I. Cor. ix. 10. Double plurals are : breþeren, I. Cor. viii. 12; breþerene, Gal. ii. 4; children, Eph. v. 8.

The genitive singular case-ending throughout is -es, -is, -ys, -us, -s, except in—his fadyr bloode, Heb. xi. 28.

§ 53. Adjectives.

The distinctions between the sing. and plural and the strong and weak declensions are not preserved; the O.E. gen. plur. ending -ra remains in a weakened form in alþer, e. g.— alþermost, Rom. xvi. 8.

The French adjectival plural is seen in—seculers desyres, Tit. ii. 12.

A few comparatives and superlatives with i-umlaut of the root-vowel occur—strengere, I. Cor. x. 22; heyzere, Heb. vii. 26; heyeste, II. Cor. yiii. 2; neer, Heb. vi. 9; negher, Rom. xiii. 11; neest, Heb. vi. 8.

Shortening of the root-vowel is orthographically represented in—derrest, I. Cor. x. 14, iv. 17; gretter, Heb. vi. 13; cp. the analogical positive grett, Heb. iv. 14, etc.

The ordinal two is used for all genders, e. g. I. Cor. vi. 16.

Personal.—O.E. ic is represented by I throughout; O.E. fem. nom. sg. heo, is not represented, unless perhaps by he in I. Cor. vii. 28; the forms sche and she are found throughout. O.E. hit appears as it, and nom. plur. þey, þei, acc. dat. plur. þem are found throughout, except—hem (dat. plur.), twice, II. Cor. xi. 21, and II. Tim. iv. 16; (acc. plur.), Phil. iii. 18.

Enclitic forms are not found.

Possessive.—The plural of the 3rd person is þer, þeir(e), þeyr(e), throughout, except—her (fem. plur.), once, I. Cor. xiv. 34.

Demonstrative.—The definite article is þe throughout; O.E. þes, þeos, þis appear as þis in the sing., e.g. Rom. xi. 25, þise and þese in the plur., e.g. Rom. viii. 30, 37, 38. þat has plur. þo, e.g. Rom. vi. 21, þoo, e.g. I. Tim. v. 25. The emphatic nom. he þis occurs once, Heb. vii. 4.

Indefinite.—me (O.E. man) does not occur; the indefinite article an occurs once before a noun with an initial consonant—an pharysee, Phil. iii. 5; cp. myn frend, Rom. xvi. 9.

Reflexive.—Compounds of possessive or personal pronouns with self(e) usually express the reflexive, but the oblique case of the personal pronoun is also used alone, e.g.—

oureself, Rom. viii. 23; vsself, II. Cor. vi. 4; trowe ȝee ȝou, Rom. vi. 11; who schal dresse hym, I. Cor. xiv. 8. Selfe is also used as an adjective: þe selfe thyng, I. Cor. i. 10.

Relative and Interrogative.—The following are used—þat; þe whiche (275 times), e.g. Rom. i. 2; þe whyche (79 times), e.g. Rom. iv. 11; þe which (6 times), e.g. Eph. ii. 4; þe whicche (once), Heb. ix. 5; þe whylke (79 times), e.g. Rom. iv. 17; þe whilke (37 times), e.g. Rom. vi. 6; þe whilk (4 times), e.g. Rom. iv. 24; þe wylke (4 times), e.g. Rom. xvi. 17; þe wilk (once), Rom. v. 5, cp. § 50.

§ 55. Strong Verbs.

The O.E. gradation remains as a rule, the vowels having undergone regular development from Old to Middle English. In one case levelling has occurred of preterite plural under preterite singular, e.g. gaf (1. plur.), Gal. ii. 4, beside ronne (2. plur.), Gal. v. 7; but very few preterite plural forms occur in this text. There is no example of 2. sg. pret. indic. No trace is left of i-umlaut or Gmc. breaking in 2. 3. sg. pres. indic., e.g.—

helpys (3. sg.), Rom. viii. 26; standys (2. sg.), Rom. xi. 20.

A few verbs have changed their conjugation—

Class I.—O.E. stigan: inf. steye, Rom. x. 6 (see § 24). weak pret. styede Eph. iv. 10.

Class II.—O.E. būgan : weak pret. bowedyn (3. pl.), Rom. iii. 12; weak p.p. bowyd, Rom. xi. 4.

O.E. gēotan : weak p. p. ȝet, Tit. iii. 6.

Class III.—O.E. ȝ(i)eldan : weak pret. ȝeeldid (3. sg.), I. Tim. vi. 13; strong forms also occur.

O.E. springan : weak pret. spryngede (3. sg.), Heb. ix. 21, but strong p. p. prungyn, Heb. ix. 13, both with confusion of meaning with O.E. weak trans. verb sprengan.

O.E. biernan : weak pret. brenden (3. pl.), Rom. i. 27; p.p. brent, I. Cor. iii. 15 (by confusion with O.E. weak verb baernan and O. W. Sc. brenna, cp. Björkman, Scand. Loanwords in M.E., p. 182).

Class V.—O.E. brecan, sp(r)econ, had gone over to Class IV already in the O.E. period; there belong also the p. p. goten, Rom. xvi. 5; gotyn, Heb. viii. 6; forgotyn, Heb. xii. 5.

Class VI.—O.E. sc(i)eppan usually gives strong forms, but also weak, 2. sg. pret. schapedist, Heb. x. 5; p. p. schapid, Eph. ii. 10.

O.E. -standan gives strong forms, but once weak, p. p. vndirstandid, Rom. i. 20.

Class VII.—O.E. draēdan, behātan, slēpan, give only weak forms, e. g. dredde (pret. pl.), Heb. xi. 23; adred (p. p.), II. Thess. ii. 2; behiȝte (3. sg. pret.), Rom. iv. 21; behiȝt (p.p.), Rom. i. 2; slept (p.p.), I. Thess. iv. 4.

O.E. f(e)allan gives strong forms, but once weak, p.p. fallyd, Gal. v. 4.

§ 56. Weak Verbs.

Classes I and II. O.E. suffixal i is lost except in—erye (inf.), eryes (3. sg. pres.), I. Cor. ix. 10; waries (imper. pl.), Rom. xii. 14, and 8 other occurrences of this verb; biried (p.p.), Col. ii. 12; byryed (p.p.), I. Cor. xv. 4, but byrred (p.p.), Rom. vi. 4.

Class III. Forms without gemination have been introduced by analogy throughout these verbs—haue (inf.), Rom. i. 28; haf (inf.), Rom. ix. 15; lyfe (1. pl. pres.), Rom. xiv. 11; lyfen, lyuen (1. pl. pres.), Rom. xiv. 8; seyande, Rom. xi. 2.

§ 57. Preterite Present.—In a few cases the pres. plural is levelled under the singular, e.g.— schal (1. pl.), Rom. iii. 5; (3. pl.), Rom. ii. 12; dar (1. pl.), II. Cor. v. 8, x. 12. A new formation is seen in owyde (3. sg. pret.), Heb. ii. 17.

§ 58. Anomalous.—O.E. (ȝe)-eode is not represented in this text. In the pres. indic. plural of the verb to be, be-forms are twice as common as are-forms. The form ar without ending is found twice as often as are or arn.

Verbal Endings.

§ 59. Present Indicative.—1. sg. -e, e. g.—

fynde, Rom. vii. 18.

2. sg. -s (11 times); -es (8 times); -is (twice); -ys (8 times); -st (16 times); -est (twice); -ist (22 times); -yst (11 times), e. g.—

has, Rom. ix. 20; knowes, Rom. ii. 18; knowis, Rom. ii. 4; standys, Rom. xi. 20; gost, Rom. xiv. 15; trowest, Rom. ii. 3; berist, Rom. xi. 18; answeryst, Rom. ix. 20.

The preterite-present verbs have -t, -st—schalt, Rom. xii. 20; woost, wost, I. Cor. vii. 16.

3. sg. usually -cs, -is, -ys, or -se; once -þ; once -iþ; once -eþ; twice -yth, e. g.—

dyes, Heb. x. 28; syttis, Heb. xii. 2; fallys, Rom. xiv. 4; sleþ, II. Cor. iii. 6; aboundiþ, II. Cor. i. 5; dyeþ, Rom. v. 7; etyth, plantyth, I. Cor. ix. 7.

plur. - (once), -e, -en, -yn, e. g.—

ha, II. Cor. viii. 18; waxe, Rom. vi. 21; cryen, Rom. viii. 15; felyn, Rom. viii. 5.

§ 60. Present Subjunctive.—Sg. -e, e. g.—

gife, Rom. xv. 5.

plur. - (once), -e, -yn, -een (once)— mak, Rom. vii. 4; hafe, Rom. xv. 4; heryn, sceyean, Rom. xi. 8.

§ 61. Imperative.—sg. strong verbs -, -e, in about equal proportions, weak verbs usually -e, e. g.—

rys, Eph. v. 14; gyfe, I. Tim. iv. 13; fede, Rom. xii. 20; hafe, I. Tim. iv. 15.

plur. -es (once), -ys (once), both in weak verbs; - (10 times), -e usually, both in strong and weak verbs, e. g.—

waries, Rom. xii. 14; makys, Rom. vi. 13; gif, Rom. xii. 21; gyfe, Rom. vi. 13.

§ 62. Infinitive.—(4 times), usually -e, -en, or -yn, e. g.—

haf, Rom. ix. 15; drynke, eten, Rom. xiv. 21; heryn, II. Tim. iv. 2.

§ 63. Present Participle.—Usually -ande or ende, but -ynd (once), -yng (28 times), -ynge (15 times), e. g.—

beande, Gal. i. 14; sendende, Rom. viii. 3; mercynd, Rom. ix. 15; rechyng, II. Cor. x. 14; assentynge, Rom. xii. 16; exceptional is abound-aunde, II. Cor. iv. 15.

§ 64. Preterite Indicative.—Strong, 1. 3. sg. -, -e,— com, Rom. ix. 31; beheelde, Rom. iv. 19.

2. sg. No examples.

plur. -e, -en, -yn— toke, Rom. ix. 30; witen, Rom. iv. 9; fellyn, Rom. xv. 3.

Weak.—Forms with personal endings prevail, but the 1. 3. sg. occurs 20 times, and the plur. 10 times, without, e. g.—

chargyd (1. sg.), II. Cor. ii. 5; regnyd (3. sg.), Rom. v. 14; leefyd (3. pl.), Rom. x. 14.

2. sg. always has -edist, e. g.—

schapedist, Heb. x. 5.

§ 65. Preterite Subjunctive.—Sing. No examples.

sene, Gal. ii. 7; hadde, I. Cor. ii. 8.

§ 66. Past Participle.—Strong, -, -e, -en, -ne, -n, -yn, e. g.—

do, Rom. iv. 14; rise, II. Tim. ii. 8; tane, Rom. viii. 15; born, Rom. ix. 11; comyn, Rom. vii. 9; with plural inflexion, chosyne (twice), Rom. viii. 33.

Weak, -ed, -id, -yd, -d, -t, e. g.—

loued, Rom. xvi. 5; obeischid, Rom. vi. 17; solewyd, Rom. xi. 7; told, Rom. viii. 26; dalt, I. Cor. xiii. 3; with plural inflexion, hidde, Col. ii. 3; hydde, I. Cor. iv. 5. Contraction with a root ending in a dental is usual; there are 4 exceptions, viz. lettid, Rom. i. 13; lettyd, Phil. iv. 10; I. Thess. ii. 18; blyndyd, Rom. xi. 7.

V. Vocabulary.

§ 67. The Vocabulary contains a considerable proportion of words of Northern form or Scandinavian origin, found chiefly in East-Midland and Northern texts (see Björkman, Scand. Loanwords in M.E., p. 194), such are—fro, aylastande, reyseðe, þey, þer, þeire, systor, hundreþ, sternes, ouer-thwert, whirlewind, bur, slaughter, dye, deyzynge, bygge (inf.).

VI. Dialect.

§ 68. From the preceding paragraphs it may be seen that though the dialect of this text is mainly that of the North-East Midlands in the late fourteenth century, it is not unmixed with forms prevalent in other parts of the country; e.g. O.E. ā usually appears as [ō], but three times as the Northern ā (§ 8); O.E. palatal c gives both k- and ch- forms (§ 50); the endings of the 2nd and 3rd pers. sing. pres. indic. are sometimes the Northern -es, -is, -ys, sometimes the Midland and Southern -st, -est, -ist, -yst, and -þ -eþ, -iþ, -yth (§ 59); the usual pres. part. endings are -ande, -ende, beside the less frequent Southern -ynd, -yng(e) (§ 63), and so on. Distinctively Southern forms are absent, except for the pres. part. endings just mentioned, and West Midland characteristics are rare, e.g. occasional -u- in unaccented syllables (§ 41) and the form vche, which occurs once, Rom. xii. 3 (§ 26). There is a fairly large intermixture of words of Northern form or inflexion, e.g. words with the suffix -dam, from O.E. -dōm, and -ar, from O.E. -āere, -ere (§ 39); infinitives without inflexion (§ 62); forms with contraction after loss of a medial consonant (§ 51), besides the phenomena mentioned above, and the Scand. elements in the vocabulary (§ 67). It is therefore probable that the text was written down originally in the North-East Midlands.
